Premier 'Fine' After Operation

Kidney Stone Removed; Major Surgery Success

Premier Bennett was reported in "good spirits" today following the emergency operation he underwent at St. Joseph's Hospital Friday for removal of a kidney stone.

The operation, lasting almost two hours, was reported satisfactory.

"The premier had a good night apart from a little post-operative distress," a hospital official said. "He had a light breakfast and is resting quietly and cheerfully."

Mrs. Bennett, who has visited him regularly since he was admitted to hospital, told friends the premier was "in good spirits" today.

She was to visit him again this afternoon.

City Tug Diverted To Rescue

The Victoria, deepsea tow boat Sudbury II, returning to home port after a series of trans-Pacific towing jobs, has been diverted to the aid of a Korean-owned Liberty ship in danger of sinking 900 miles off the Oregon coast.

A Portland based tug, the Salvage Chief, is also on the way.

Sudbury II is expected to reach the scene late Monday or early Tuesday. She was diverted from her homeward route at 6 p.m. Thursday.

The Liberty ship is the Silla. She has cracked deck plates, and reports taking water in the number three hold. The ship also indicated there may be water in the fuel tanks.

The freighter is reported rolling badly in heavy seas and a 25-knot wind. The crew of 34 Koreans aboard is not thought to be in immediate peril, but continued heavy weather could bring the ship into a dangerous situation.

The Salvage Chief was ordered to the Silla's assistance by her agents. Sudbury II, commanded by Capt. Hill Wilson, was diverted to give additional aid if needed.

Bevan 'Feels Better'

LONDON (AP) — Aneurin Bevin, who had hovered near death for three days, woke up this morning and told his nurse, "I feel very much better."

A hospital bulletin on the 62-year-old deputy leader of the Labor party said he showed "some improvement" in his fight against the aftermath of a major abdominal operation.

PICKET LINE FIGHTS ERUPT

PORLTAND (AP) — Fist fights and scuffling broke out today outside the Oregonian newspaper plant where stereotypers have been on strike since November.

Hundreds of jeering pickets packed the sidewalks around the plant.

Police said there were from 500 to 600 pickets on the sides when the disturbances began.

Two policeman were hit as the fist fights flared. No serious injuries were reported.

NO COMPLICATIONS

The operation was begun at 3 p.m. and was expected to last two hours. But it was over by 4:45 p.m., some 15 minutes earlier than expected.

Doctors said no complications were expected as the premier has a robust constitution. He has been absent from work for health reasons on only two occasions — once when he had "flu" and the other when he sprained a tendon in his heel.

A special telephone was set up in the hospital today to handle numerous inquiries after the premier's condition — and some were long-distance calls from his home constituency of Kelowna.

SECOND FIDDLE FOR FIRST LORD

Navy Pipes a Bit Pipped

LONDON (Reuters) — Red-faced navy officials today did their best to explain away a comedy of errors featuring the new First Lord of the Admiralty, Lord Carrington.

It was no use.

The whole performance at the great naval base at Portsmouth Friday was seen by thousands of spectators.

Lord Carrington was in Portsmouth to pay his first official visit since assuming his new post. He and his private secretary, P. D. Nairne, dressed alike in traditional blue-serge suits and peaked caps, were about to step aboard the minesweeper Sheraton for a routine call — when the trouble began.

For some reason — still unknown — Carrington fell behind and Nairne mounted the gangplank first. Bosuns piped officers and men snapped to attention and the television cameras whirred.

Lt. Cmdr. George King, captain of the Sheraton, said aft-wards: "I introduced myself and showed him around the mess deck."

Nairne asked knowledgeable questions and listened attentively while Carrington, quiet but equally attentive — trailed behind — listening to the answers.

King then said to Nairne: "Perhaps you would like to come up on the bridge, sir."

"That would be jolly nice," Nairne replied.

"Good idea," said Carrington, although no one paid any attention to him.

Carrington was not heard from. Officials in London said he had left for the country.

The trip around the ship took 30 minutes. King saluted Nairne and said: "It's been an honor having you." Nairne still trailed silently by Carrington — was piped ashore.

An embarrassed King later said: "Now I realize I never even met the first lord. I left him standing on the deck."

Nairne said: "I never thought I was being mistaken for the first lord."

Carrington was not heard from. Officials in London said he had left for the country.

His benign manner took the sting out of the demonstration. The shouting died down and the Africans waved back at the prime minister.

Some of the posters on display declared "self-government is our heritage" and "remember, we have a treaty of protection."

Northern Rhodesia and neighboring Nyasaland are British protectorates. They are federated with the self-governing colony of Southern Rhodesia.

Negro nationalists are seeking self-government and eventual independence for Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland outside the federation framework, which they regard as white-dominated. Macmillan is urging all three territories to remain together in an ultimately independent federation.

UN PETITION HERE ON ANTI-SEMITISM

A petition asking United Nations action on anti-Semitism is being circulated on Vancouver Island and throughout B.C. by the Jewish Peoples Order, Vancouver Section.

The petition reads: "We... appeal to the secretary general of the United Nations to place the question of the anti-Semitic outbursts in many parts of the world on the agenda and, further, that the United Nations declare, in the name of the peoples of the world, that these vicious acts are a crime against the conscience of the world's people."

"Further, that the United Nations call upon its member nations to outlaw all Nazi and neo-Nazi organizations."

THOUGHT IT WAS 'FLU'

First announcement that the premier would undergo surgery for removal of a kidney stone was made at a press conference Friday at 3 p.m. when the operation was scheduled to begin.

Reporters were called to the premier's office and told by his assistant, Dan Ekmak, that he had been taken to St. Joseph's Hospital Thursday afternoon for tests. Up to that time the premier believed he was merely suffering from 'flu.'

At first St. Joseph's Hospital authorities endeavored to keep secret the fact Mr. Bennett was in hospital.

The Times received a report at 12.40 p.m. Friday that Mr. Bennett had gone to hospital. A routine check was made to St. Joseph's. The attendant at the admitting office flatly denied that Mr. Bennett was a patient.

DIDN'T KNOW

Barely two hours later the premier's office called a press conference at which Dr. Boettcher disclosed that an immediate operation was planned.

The admitting office attendant then claimed that even she had not known Mr. Bennett was in the hospital when asked earlier.

Dr. Boettcher attended the press conference and told how, when the premier was admitted to hospital Thursday, he was x-rayed and examined.

"A stone was detected in the left kidney," Dr. Boettcher said, "and further x-rays next morning revealed the exact locality."

He said the surgery had to be undertaken as soon as reasonably possible and the decision to operate was made Friday afternoon.

VERY PAINFUL

A kidney stone is caused by a precipitation of chemicals in the collecting system of the kidney. Stones may either be minute or as large as a bean, although often more irregular in shape.

"It is not all turkey and plum pudding. In some parts of Canada they have never eaten a Christmas turkey. They have big meat pies instead, and they refrigerate them outside the back door."

"Canada has a rich and colorful variety of national customs that are simply fascinating to the traveller and explorer. All we have to do is to sell them properly."

He referred to British Columbia as "a magnificent emprise of mountain and sea that knows no peer."

He believed the 1960s would witness "a big upsurge of tourism in B.C. if tourist promoters were prepared to keep up with the times."

"Most of our accommodation units are 30, 40 and 50 years old. Contrast them with the kind of accommodation offered in California, Hawaii, Nassau—even in Britain and France."

He suggested the banks and the federal government should co-operate by providing some means of borrowing capital at

In his message of sympathy, CCF leader Strachan wished the premier a speedy recovery.

"I extend to the premier and Mrs. Bennett the sympathies and best wishes of all members of the Opposition," he said.

Liberal leader Ray Perrault sent a telegram to Premier Bennett Friday night which said in part:

"The Liberals of B.C. extend to you their best wishes for a speedy and complete recovery."

40 Children Buried Alive

MANILA (UPI) — Forty school children were reported buried alive Friday when a landslide struck their school in a remote southern Philippines mountain town.

Every available constabulary soldier in Zamboanga Del Sur province was dispatched to the town of Dimatiling to recover the bodies of victims. There appeared no hope that any of the youngsters would be found alive after being buried under tons of earth for more than 24 hours.

Soccer Fans Riot

PONT SAID (UPI) — Authorities proclaimed a state of emergency today and called in police from nearby provinces to curb city-wide riots set off by a battle between soccer fans in a local stadium. At least four persons were reported killed and about 167 injured in bitter street fighting.

MURISON PRESENTS FAIR SHARE TORY TAX PLAN

BY PETE LOUDON

Maj.-Gen. C. A. P. Murison plunged into his career in provincial politics Friday night, using his knowledge of municipal affairs as a springboard.

The former president for two terms of the Union of B.C. Municipalities, and former reeve of North Cowichan, drew about 50 persons for his initial address as a nominee for candidacy on the Progressive Conservative slate in Victoria.

Speaking at the Blue Room, under sponsorship of the Saanich PC Association, Gen. Murison outlined his party's policy for provincial-municipal cost sharing—the policy initiated under his chairmanship by the UBCM.

It seeks relief for municipal governments "compelled to meet conditions of the atomic age with revenues of horse-and-buggy days."

Property owners throughout B.C. are laden with taxes and responsibilities, he said. The British North America Act first divided the responsibilities between federal and provincial governments in the last century, when Canada was essentially a rural state.

The provincial government relegated some responsibility for services to the municipalities and gave them some revenue sources—including the property tax.

But since then, with the advent of motor transport, and an enlarged sense of social responsibilities, the situation has altered, he said. There is a whole new class of social services and expanded education facilities.

"The province passed on a considerable share to the local governments, but neglected to provide additional revenues." Local governments have had no say in the amounts of these loads and the provinces made it clear they must be carried, even before local services to property are considered.

With the post-war expansion period, the burden grew greater on local government. This was recognized by the senior government to some degree through grants-in-aid.

But they were not based on any rational principle, had no pattern, differing from province to province.

Gen. Murison said the grants were "dummy in a baby's mouth to stop him from squawking."

To provide a better balance, the UBCM's Murison Formula suggests municipal property tax revenues be used only for provision of services to property, such as fire, police, water, sewers, with the exception that the local government would pay 50 per cent of school capital costs. This would preserve a measure of control in school building for the municipal school boards.

Under the scheme, the province would pay for services to people—education operating costs, health and welfare costs and 50 per cent of school building costs.

The province should raise its revenue for services to people by a system based on ability to pay—as the federal income tax is levied. The tax on property should be levied by municipalities in ratio to the benefits received.

"This would let each government stand on its own feet without the other and result in a wider and fairer distribution of the tax load for services to people."

DON'T WANT

He said the government argues that in the past seven years it has increased its contribution to school costs by 200 per cent. But in the past five years the increased demand on property taxes for school purposes was up 317 per cent in the case of Saanich.

The general said the government also argues that the changes he proposes would reduce school board autonomy.

But at present the province calls 95 per cent of the tune for 50 per cent of the money... autonomy barely exists."

Tourists Want Castles, Museums More Diversions, 'Hard Sell' Needed, Fisher Tells Jaycees

If Victoria is to hold its place in the world of tourism it must offer attractions that cannot be found anywhere else.

John Fisher, executive director of the Canadian Tourist Association, Toronto, followed this theme in a forceful, sometimes hilarious, address to Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce Friday night.

He said Victoria's splendid gardens, lovely homes and scenic drives have a widespread appeal but more diversions are needed—especially castles and museums.

"Remember, Americans love museums," Mr. Fisher said, "and they will travel hundreds of miles to look at strange fish in tanks."

A well-known lecturer and broadcaster, Mr. Fisher drew alternate laughter and applause from a large audience attending the Jaycees' annual "Bosses' Night" at the Crystal Garden.

On the serious side he urged all Canadians to develop a strong national unity to meet the challenge of the future.

"I believe in ourselves and in a prosperous Canadianism," he declared. "There is no room in this new Canada for the pussy-footer, the fence-sitter or the timid little man who sells out to the first big fat American wallet that comes along."

"Don't sell ourselves short on national enthusiasm," he said. "What have we to apologize about? No country on earth has more to offer than Canada—not even the great United States."

Mr. Fisher admitted today that his appointment as commissioner of Victoria and Island Land Publicity Bureau is being considered "on both sides."

"The next move is up to the directors of the bureau," he said. "We have discussed the matter but no decision was reached on either side."

Mr. Fisher has been mentioned for some time as a possible successor to veteran commissioner George L. Warren, who has served the bureau for nearly 40 years.

Soon after he arrived here from Toronto Friday afternoon, Mr. Fisher had a private talk with bureau directors.

Later, at a dinner meeting of Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce, he paid high tribute to Mr. Warren's services to Victoria and the Island. Mr. Warren, a guest, received a tremendous ovation.

"The man who succeeds him, whoever he is, will have to have big feet to fill those shoes," Mr. Fisher said. "He is a wonderful operator and in all my travels around North America I have never met his peer."

"When you consider the limitations of his budget, all the work he puts in and the imagination he uses in publicizing this Island, you realize what a tower of strength he is."

A free showing of three films will be held Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the public library music room.

Shown will be "Spruce Bog," "The Musical Ride" and "The Growth of Flowers."

Warner, arrested in Toronto several days after the body was found, sobbed and was supported by two RCMP officers while sentence was pronounced.

Warner testified he strangled Valpeters with a belt after Valpeters made homosexual advances towards him on a lonely road outside Edmonton.

He suggested the banks and the federal government should co-operate by providing some means of borrowing capital at

In his message of sympathy, CCF leader Strachan wished the premier a speedy recovery.

"I extend to the premier and Mrs. Bennett the sympathies and best wishes of all members of the Opposition," he said.

LIBERAL LEADER Ray Perrault attended the press conference and told how, when the premier was admitted to hospital Thursday, he was x-rayed and examined.

"A stone was detected in the left kidney," Dr. Boettcher said, "and further x-rays next morning revealed the exact locality."

He said the surgery had to be undertaken as soon as reasonably possible and the decision to operate was made Friday afternoon.

AUTOGRAPHED PHOTO DIEF'S GIFT TO KISHI

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Green has a beautiful Japanese-made cigar case as a memento of Premier Nobusuke Kishi's one-day visit to Ottawa. It is of silver outside and teakwood inside, with a bird carved in a Japanese setting on the top. Prime Minister Diefenbaker also received a gift from the visiting statesman, but he preferred to keep it secret. He gave Mr. Kishi an autographed portrait of himself in silver.

Under the niceties of diplomatic protocol, Mr. Green's gift to Mr. Kishi—likely to be a portrait also—will be forwarded at a later date.

More Immigrants Needed by Canada

(From Times News Service)

OTTAWA—The government was told Friday by one of its supporters and an Ontario Liberal that Canada needs more immigrants.

Arthur Maloney (PC-Toronto Parkdale) and Hubert Badanai (L-Fort William), said in the Commons throne speech debate that a greater flow of immigrants is necessary to ensure Canada's continued development, especially in the North.

Prospective development of the North, Mr. Badanai said, will need immigrants because most Canadians are too well settled to brave a pioneer life.

Mr. Badanai, former Fort William mayor who was born in Italy and came to Canada as a youth, said there has been too much emphasis on immigrants competing for jobs and not enough on increasing the number of consumers. More consumers created a demand for goods which in turn created more jobs and more customers for farmers.

Quotas for Japanese and Chinese immigrants should be increased because they had proved themselves "excellent citizens."

Mr. Maloney said measures should be taken to facilitate

Let's Hear Some Ideas —Builder

It's all very well to criticize today's housing concepts but the big need is solid proposals on how to change the current "crackerbox" construction. George Wheaton, B.C. vice-president of the Canadian Construction Association, said to day.

The public shows a "reluctance" to deviate from standard-type homes and he admitted "mass understanding" of housing and layout "can be pretty backward."

He was commenting on views expressed by a committee of architects in Victoria the last few days, critical of home building styles and subdivision planning in this area.

He described the criticism as "good" because it makes the public think what they may be missing by standardization.

'Boxes' Attractive Inside But Dull Outside—Women

Homeowners in five Greater Victoria subdivisions developed since the Second World War are satisfied with interior design and size of lots. The Victoria Local Council of Women reported Friday to a committee of touring architects.

Some residents felt, however, there was a lack of variety in the exterior design of homes, the council said.

The council brief was one of several presented the committee investigating "suburbia" for the Royal Architectural Institute of Canada.

The University Women's Club described the old Lansdowne airfield subdivision as "attractive for people with modest incomes." This project had been criticized by planers to this type of development.

The brief said this was caused by "the policy of maximum financing for minimum performance on the part of mortgage and finance companies."

Deputy minister of municipal affairs, J. Everett Brown, said that as community planning was a new profession, there had not yet been time to come up with plans acceptable to the majority of people.

The Vancouver Island chapter of the Architectural Institute of B.C. said Victoria's low-cost residential subdivisions "with few exceptions" show undesirable characteristics, and the trend seems to be to this type of development."

Lottery Bonds Urged to Help Cities

Lottery bonds—carrying interest and giving a chance at cash prizes—were suggested by Mr. Badanai to help municipalities to acquire capital.

He said they could be modelled on lottery bonds issued in Britain. These carry a low interest rate but give the buyer a chance to win cash prizes in a drawing.

"The buyer gets his money's worth whether he wins or not," Mr. Badanai said. Canadian bonds could carry two per cent interest and the lottery prizes would make them easy to sell.

This would be "an almost magical method" of providing money for municipalities.

He also suggested the government exempt interest on municipal bonds from taxation to make them more attractive.

CCF House Leader Hazen Argue charged that unemployed persons are being defrauded by "unfair and vicious" regulations of the unemployment insurance commission.

Labor Minister Starr denied the charge and said no consideration has been given to changing the regulations in question.

Mr. Starr said new regulations which went into effect Sept. 27 at the request of the commission mean that holiday pay now is considered as regular earnings for purposes of unemployment insurance benefits. A claimant's benefits

CHAMBER BACKS TCA

Victoria Chamber of Commerce directors Friday agreed to support Trans-Canada Air Lines as the carrier on the Vancouver-Victoria-Seattle service.

Directors voted unanimously to accept recommendation of the harbor and transportation group to back TCA over Pacific Western Airlines, which has applied to the Air Transport Board to be licensed as the triangle-service carrier.

At the request of the harbor group, directors referred to the executive committee a recommendation that a brief setting out the chamber's views be prepared for the ATB; that the brief be presented by a chamber representative, and that a solicitor be engaged as an additional representative if it is thought advisable.

Directors were told by Capt. Ron Newell that the Chamber's University committee will handle the solicitation of Victoria corporations in the $2,500,000 Victoria University Building Fund drive.

Architects pulled a few owner can't write off local punches Friday in remarks about Greater Victoria housing developments and general layout.

John C. Parkin, Toronto, said some streets "seem to defy the contours of the topography. Who lays them out?"

And he said some subdivisions suggest the audacity of the merchant builder rather than the sensibility of a person with one iota of community responsibility.

Victoria architect Peter Cotter said there wasn't a "decent" place for elderly persons to live "within a half-mile of Eaton's."

Capital Region Planning Board chairman Frank W. Nicolls termed Victoria "a funny place from a social standpoint. Victoria is more a state of mind than a municipality."

He said also that the average persons would "be better off" renting than owning their own homes.

This is the coming thing, he predicted.

Mr. Nicolls said a home owner can't write off local taxes and interest payments against income tax, as they can in the U.S., "but an apartment owner can, and the man in the apartment gets the benefit."

He didn't want to hang around here and miss lunch at . . .

'A Goad to the Conscience'

The poetry of Robert Burns is a goad to the conscience "that there may yet be world-wide love and understanding," Rev. Dr. Harry Lennox of Vancouver told 200 guests at the annual St. Andrew's and Caledonian Society Burns dinner Friday in Holyrood House.

NEW ROCKET MOST ACCURATE

The Soviet news agency Tass quoted astronautical scientist Ari Sternfeld as saying the rocket "maintained a speed with a precision of up to three-thousandths of 1 per cent, and deviated from the pre-set angle of ascent by only 18 seconds."

He said the precision "surpassed all expectations."

Beyond Our Means

IT HAS BEEN OBVIOUS FOR years that Canada was living far beyond its means, on money borrowed from foreigners. Now, perhaps, the nation will believe those facts when Governor Coyne, of the Bank of Canada, lays them on the line.

When a young, growing nation like Canada borrows foreign money for constructive purposes this, of course, does not necessarily mean that it is living beyond its means, and Mr. Coyne said nothing of the sort.

If money so borrowed is put to work in the production of more saleable goods the debt carries and repays itself. But what worries Mr. Coyne is that much of our borrowings are not used for those purposes.

We have borrowed a great deal of money merely to pay for imports of consumer goods, thus going steadily into debt for daily house-keeping purposes. Secondly, we have borrowed even more for governmental investment in various projects that are often highly desirable in themselves but produce no goods, earn no revenue and provide no foreign currency for the repayment of the debt.

The result, as Mr. Coyne says, is that every year we have to find somehow about a billion dollars in foreign currencies to pay interest or dividends on our public and private borrowings. These debt charges must be paid annually and the capital sums finally repaid. There is no way out of those obligations, Mr. Coyne admits, but he asks Canada not to keep on increasing them at the present rate and going steadily deeper into foreign debt.

This, he says, we can do if we will save more of our own money and invest it at home. Canadian savings, in his view "can supply all the capital funds needed by governments and business combined to carry on a capital expenditure program as large in total as is sound and healthy for the Canadian economy to sustain in any one year."

Thus if we decided to live within our means we would not have to abandon our goal of expansion and progress. "On the contrary," Mr. Coyne concludes, "it would enable us to achieve sustainable, efficient and fruitful expansion in a much more satisfactory way than in the past."

Will Canada accept this sound advice, borrow foreign money only for productive purposes and begin to live within its means? Or will it plunge still further into debt which does not itself produce the means of repayment?

That will depend on our own rate of saving and investment in our own resources, both private and governmental. And that, in turn, must depend greatly on the example set by the national Government.

It is all very well for the Government to lecture Canadians on the virtue of thrift but they would be more impressed if the Government practised thrift itself; all very well for Mr. Fleming to abhor increasing debt, but he is by far the largest borrower in the country.

The wonder, indeed, is that Canadians have been saving so much when they see the Government bonds bought in the past now driven down in selling price by the Government's borrowings, when the small bond holder must take a heavy loss on these investments if he sells them now, and when his money in any case will be repaid at maturity date in debased dollars.

If the Government wants Canadians to save more and borrow less from foreigners it must first get its own financial affairs in order.

A balanced budget—or, better, a budget in surplus—and an assurance that the value of money will not continue to shrink by inflation would do more than all the Government's eloquence to encourage increased saving and less dependence on an inflow of foreign money. And it is this inflow alone, we should always remember, that keeps our dollar at a premium and thus retards our exports.

Who'll Pay the Ransom?

MUCH HAS BEEN MADE OF the claim that money needed for development of Thetis Lake Park can be obtained by selling a transmission line easement for $5,200. The power line proposal means that a wide swath would have to be cut through one side of the park, the trees removed and the brush kept perpetually short. Down this denuded aisle the transmission towers would carry their high tension lines. As is well known, wind will continually erode the forest edge, so that the damaged area will become a little wider and more ragged each year.

This seems to be a heavy price to pay for money to use in developing some other part of the park. The permanent damage appears to be all out of proportion to the amount of good that might be done. It is taken for granted that no other consideration than money for development governs the thinking of those city officials who advocate location of the power line within the park. This fact suggests an alternative solution.

If the conservation groups in the community, and all who treasure natural countryside and wildlife sanctuaries, were to offer to raise $5,200 by subscription, would the city officials permit them to ransom the park from the threat of a high tension line? The money could be donated to the authorities for use in developing the park, and the park would be spared the scar of industrial invasion. It would seem to be a bargain at the price.

How about it, conservationists? How about it city?

'Why Wait for Spring?'

THERE ARE FEW CENTRES in Canada as climatically suited to year-round construction operations as Victoria. But even here a winter lull occurs.

That means seasonal unemployment and a slowing of the economy unless special steps are taken. The most important of those steps may be the winter employment scheme now being fostered here and elsewhere in the nation to provide work and pay for those who would otherwise lack both.

Projects of various governments take up some of the slack. Much more can be done, however, if the businessman and the householder decide to proceed with work which they might otherwise put off.

"Why wait for spring?" asks the slogan of the winter work campaign and with good reason! At present it is easier to secure workmen for different jobs and there is a less concentrated drain on supplies.

Remodelling, redecorating, new installations can all be carried out at this time of the year in any number of instances.

Individuals, companies and organizations are asked to give attention now to work they intend to have done in 1960. In many cases they are in a position to proceed to give jobs and have jobs done without delay.

... Not a Happy One'

ACCORDING TO TRADITION, the London bobby is guide, philosopher and friend to the stranger in the great city, the soul of courtesy and rectitude and the impeccable champion of high character.

That's the tradition.

The actuality seems to fall somewhat short in the opinion of the average Britisher these days. It has fallen so short that the British Government has ordered a special commission to investigate the force to find out why the police and the public are too often at odds.

Certain relatively isolated, reprehensible incidents have placed the officers of the law in a bad light. But the general opinion seems to be that traffic congestion and the number of instances in which the man in blue and the person in the car irritate one another are the main causes of serious friction.

The matter boils down to a simple question in human relations: How do you go about loving the official who pinched you yesterday for overparking, missing a stop-sign, creeping on a red light, or violating any number of regulations which the law imposes on the driver?

As Mr. William Schwenck Gilbert once said, when constabulary duty's to be done, a policeman's lot is not a happy one. And it doesn't improve the car owner's temper either.

As Our Readers See It

Football Pools

The contention of "Soccer Fan" that football pools are not lotteries has, in the United Kingdom, definite legal basis. There, the pools are controlled by special Act of Parliament and a government appointee sits on the board of directors of every pool company.

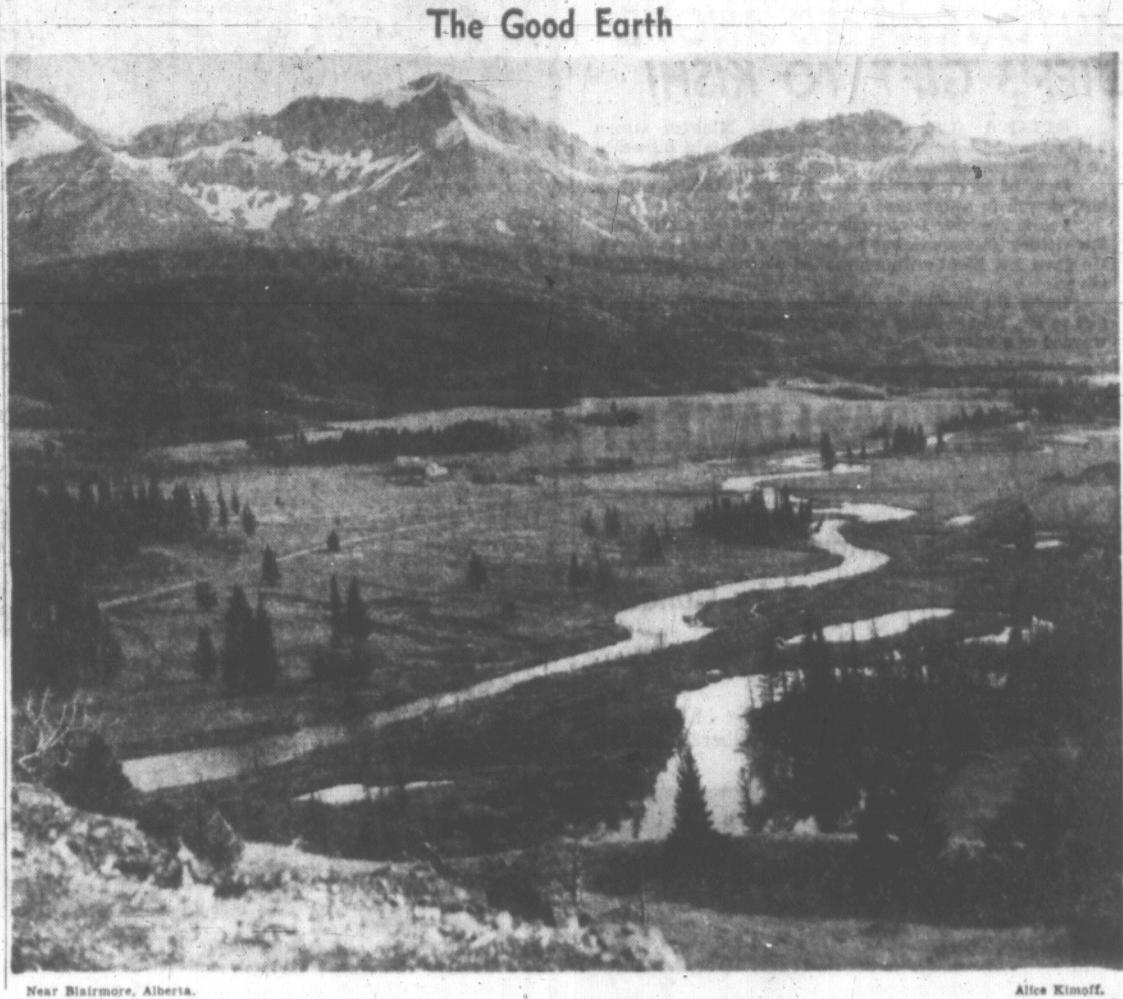

As a result the pools are run efficiently, openly and above board. There is no hypocrisy or law-breaking in connection with the Pools in Britain and this should have some attraction to those who claim to have objections on religious grounds.

That such things have not been made legal in Canada is a mystery as no one, except a few mayors, seems to be opposed. It brings out with much force the question as to who really governs Canada?

This country is riddled with numerous forms of legalized gambling which have the power of big money behind them, e.g. horse racing, stock exchange, etc., but only the "games" which are open also to the little man seem to be barred by our Government.

While fully supporting "Soccer Fan's" request that people write to the members of parliament, I fear that there is too much complacency here to expect much response. There is one way to bring an end to the ridiculous situation which permits so much money going abroad. If we cannot trust ourselves to run these things why not invite such organizations as the British Football Pools to open agencies in Canada? They would be taxed as they are in the U.K. and any profits would ultimately be spent on Canadian goods and services.

THAT WAS TOMMY DAVIS; THAT WAS THE CANADIAN WEST By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Full of Boyish Life and a Passion for His Native Land

IF Western Canada ever produced an accurate image of itself that image was the late Tommy Davis. On his weather-beaten face, in his boozing voice, in a friendliness that stretched over five continents and in every instinct of his being he was the Canadian West incarnate. That he has left us is very hard for this reporter to believe, and to countless friends high and low from here to Chunking, Tokyo, Bonn and Canberra his sudden taking off is heartbreaking. Until the final moment, as I left him the other day in Vancouver airport after a flight from Victoria, he had walked with kings and never lost the common touch.

Hutchison

His last act when we boarded the plane was to write down in his note book reminder to get in touch with a famous ambassador in a European country and arrange for him to entertain two modest travelling matrons from Victoria.

Never idle in good works, he had come to Vancouver in search of money from among his rich friends for the Victoria University. Then, he said, he would be off to Mexico to do a little deep-sea fishing and we would meet again a month hence.

That night death struck him, still full of boyish life and a passion for his native land which had made him the confidant of prime ministers in Ottawa and of his Chinese gardener.

The files of every newspaper office in the country record his public works as the dominant barnstorming politician of his native Saskatchewan, the distinguished native son of Prince Albert, a learned judge, and Canada's ambassador to West Germany, China, Japan and Australia.

The library of the great Asahi Daily produced for me in Tokyo not long ago a dozen photographs of the Canadian who had made himself Japan's friend. But those records do not contain another record now lost forever.

As he was preparing for his Mexican holiday Mr. Davis told his secretary to type out the manuscript of the first chapters of his memoirs which he would complete on his return. That book, full of secret history in Canada and foreign lands, full of his penetrating opinions on great affairs and above all full of Tommy Davis, will never be written.

With it is lost a unique and invaluable insight into our times through a mind as clear and bracing as the Prairie air. Only those who have seen the first chapters can guess the substance of that loss.

Yet the greater loss is the man himself for he gave to public life both as a fighting politician and a brilliant civil servant a quality which is perishing in this age of conformity. Nothing, neither royal courts nor the cracker barrel of the Prairie store, could make Tommy Davis conform.

In the pigeon holes of the Canadian External Affairs Department for example will be found a solemn dispatch from the Ambassador to Japan replying to the usual routine request for strict economy in the nation's embassies.

In the office of Canada's representative at Tokyo, wrote Mr. Davis, he had to attend many official Japanese funerals. And if this would help the treasury he would buy an artificial wreath to be laid on every grave and then retrieved and preserved for perpetual future use.

And when he and his wife—their marriage being a classic fairy tale of domestic happiness—brought a Chinese cook from Hong Kong the ex-ambassador's first act was to introduce her to all the leading businessmen at the Victoria Golf Club.

That was Tommy Davis. That was the Canadian West.

No partisanship touched his years of foreign service but he was a Liberal and proud of it from that day in Prince Albert when, aged seven, he was banished from the dining room as Sir Wilfrid Laurier came to dinner and, in revenge, lowered an old suit of underwear on a string through the ceiling into the great man's soup plate and ended the evening on the knee of a prime minister.

Two major figures came out of Prince Albert, spending much of their lives in political collision across the Prairies. John Diefenbaker lived to head a government. But neither he nor any other Canadian ever lived a fuller life, enjoyed it more or worked harder for Canada than Tommy Davis.

As I hear again his boozing fare-well the other night it seems to me now a dauntless greeting to life's last visitor.

He had suffered a slight seizure in the airport; he was dying and I think that he knew it, as his friends did not.

But ever with a frolic welcome he took the thunder and the sunshine in his stride. Nothing ever frightened him in his long voyage and no man could feel less than a man in his presence.

Canada Has to Tag Along and Take What Is Offered

A FEW days ago, a U.S.-Canadian team launched a ground-to-ground missile at the Churchill testing range. The missile is known as the Lacrosse, and is designed to replace heavy field artillery. It has a range of about 20 miles, and can be controlled during flight.

The Churchill test, according to the Canadian Army, was a great success. Its purpose was to gauge the efficiency of the Lacrosse under Arctic conditions.

It might be asked here why it is necessary to test the Lacrosse under Arctic conditions, since no one anticipates using it in the Arctic, but that merely an incidental factor.

What is important is a report from Washington that, in the latest U.S. defence budget, the second stage of the Lacrosse program has been cancelled. Our defence department isn't convinced of the accuracy of the report, but is avidly following the newspapers to find out just what is going on.

If the Lacrosse is cancelled, it will come as no great surprise to Canadian defence planners. It will be one more embarrassment in a long series; one further instance of a change in U.S.

policy that has caught the Canadian Government completely off-guard.

In particular, it will embarrass Defence Minister George Pearkes, who has announced, in no uncertain terms, Canada's intention of procuring the Lacrosse for the Canadian Army.

The Lacrosse issue is a prime example of Canada's complete dependence on the U.S. for new defence weapons. If they build it, we will get it. If they drop it, we will drop it, and take whatever the U.S. offers in the way of a substitute.

It matters little to the U.S. that Canadian taxpayers have paid for the training of soldiers in the use of the Lacrosse; that our military planners have plotted tactics with the capabilities of the missile in mind.

A situation is now shaping up of far greater political impact, but on the same lines, and the Government is seriously concerned at what it would mean in terms of public support of defence spending.

It matters another U.S. missile, the highly-touted Bomarc,

Canada is scheduled to put Bomarc squadrons into operation in mid-1961.

Bomarc is an unmanned aircraft, designed to knock down attacking enemy bombers with a nuclear warhead.

Unlike the Lacrosse, which can be haulled around on the back of a truck, the Bomarc requires very expensive launching facilities. Each missile is housed in a concrete pod, hydraulic equipment lifts it into firing position. Each squadron must have extensive facilities for the men required for maintenance and launching.

Canada is currently pouring millions of dollars into construction of Bomarc bases.

And there is a distinct possibility these bases will never be used. The U.S. has been downgrading the Bomarc for months, and many U.S. officials flatly predict the Bomarc B, the one Canada is to receive, will never be built.

This could produce an issue fatal to Canada's defence alignments.

In particular, it would have severe repercussions for NORAD, under which Canada and the U.S. have pooled their resources for the defence of the North American continent from air attack.

It is one thing to accept the facts of life, and rely on the much greater resources of the U.S. for weapons development, but once a program is embarked on, and Canadian tax dollars spent to put it into operation, it comes as a hard blow indeed for the U.S. to cancel that program without so much as a by-your-leave.

There have been other cases: the supersonic F-108 interceptor that was to move in to replace the defunct Canadian CF-105 Arrow was dropped from our Government.

To be brutally frank, the U.S. has not yet decided what interceptor they will tell us to buy to take its place. When they do, we will have little option but to buy it.

This is the situation that is at the root of Canada's defence dilemma. There is no easy solution. What is a major policy decision in Canada is just another missile program to be lopped off by budget planners in Washington.

Canada has to tag along, take what is offered, and hope no one will pull the rug out from under.

Ottawa is hoping now—hoping that the three Bomarc bases will not become concrete monuments to the failure of continental defence. Canada can't afford such costly failures.

COUNTRY WALKING IS RECOMMENDED

The Catch Is That When You Walk You Begin to Think

LAST Sunday morning I was walking slowly uphill over the lower slopes of Mount Brenton. The sealskins fastened to the under side of my skis gripped the snow and prevented the skis from slipping back at each step; progress was slow, but I was in no hurry, and the sun was warm on my back. There are few more contemplative pastimes than climbing on sealskins: the steps are short, the rhythm is easy, and there is all the time in the world for thought.

It occurred to me then that although we have almost every conceivable kind of sport at our very door here, the facilities for walking, simplest and cheapest of all sports, are not up to much.

Of course you can walk along the roads facing the traffic, jumping nimbly out of the way every ten yards to avoid a cruel death; or you can take the car and drive out into the country, get out and walk along the road facing the traffic, jumping nimbly out of the way every hundred yards to avoid a cruel death.

Temperance

IN this intemperate age it is refreshing to indeed to discover that even in the days of our fathers the barbarians were at work, even though their efforts were not part of caterers and their staff and also an indifference to any consideration, but that of compelling customers to buy all kinds of nasty and expensive stuff in order to swell the profits of the vendor. In this as in other respects the consumer needs protection everywhere and at all times.

"A Consumers' League of intelligent drinkers has never yet been formed (Note: Anyone interested, drop me a line) and probably it would never be strong enough to combat vested interests. The problem of getting good liquor is of the utmost importance to the nation, for indigestion is probably at the root of almost every disease known to man. There is also no doubt that indigestion is at the root of most political discontent, which is in itself a danger to the community."

And he goes on at some length. One finds it hard to disagree. We in this province (and for that matter in the whole country) have been forced for so long to creep furtively into ghoulish beer parlors (what a name!) for a series of wet glasses filled with nauseous slop, or else to pay outrageous prices in Government revenue shops for bottles of whisky or what have you that any effort at reform through education is in for a rough time.

It would take many a year of determined indoctrination to get the absurd idea out of our public thinking that liquors are bad in themselves. And only a government could provide the necessary financing to the vast complex of advertising which would be required. And the various governments profit enormously from the ridiculous effects of the nonsensical system we have.

Here's to the tax-gatherer and national indigestion!

"Presumably the only explanation for this is an extraordinary slackness on the

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

Lagging in Sports

LONDON — The public teaching the master...

Reyburn

It's happened in soccer in this post-war era. Having invented the game, England now finds it difficult to summon up a victory against Continental and South American teams, even against certain smaller countries regarded as minor opposition in the soccer world.

It has happened with rugby football, another English invention. England, even when combined with the other British Isles' countries, is never able to conquer New Zealand or South Africa.

Likewise in that other sport they concocted—cricket, Australia has given them the soundest drubbing they've ever had.

Now, it seems, the sad situation has extended to another sport they taught the world—field hockey, forerunner of the ice version.

The Hockey Association Council has held a meeting at which it has been forced to the decision that something just must be done about the state of the game here.

In the old days they could lick anybody at field hockey with the greatest of ease. First time they played Germany they had a 9-1 win. Last time they played it was 3-0 to Germany, and the Germans have won four of the last five games played. Even little Holland, a pushover for England prewar, now beats the inventors of the game regularly.

The council has decided to take steps to see to it that field hockey players here pull their socks up, following the conclusion they reached that "there is nothing radically wrong with the game in this country, but as in other sports the standards of the rest of the world have risen more rapidly than our own, with the result that England with its present approach, has become a declining power."

Quote from a Sunday Dispatch review of the television year: "As finders of talent the television companies are supreme. As exploiters of it they need a Barnum-and-Bailey course."

We have the example of Canada's Bernard Braden and Barbara Kelly, probably the wittiest and most charming couple ever imported. Braden is now reduced to an uneasy commentator on a Saturday afternoon roundup. Miss Kelly decorated What's My Line but hasn't been asked back.

It's more economic for buildings to face north. That's what the East Suffolk Education Committee found. It is seeking permission from the ministry of education to build all future schools facing in that direction. The modern school has so many windows that venetian blinds are needed to keep the sun out. The committee's venetian blind bill this year: $10,000.

Split-Level Design Offers Eye-Appeal Plus Livability

The attractiveness of a modern bungalow and the spaciousness of a two-storey dwelling have been combined in the design of this three-bedroom split-level house by architect R. Whiteley of Don Mills.

Constructed of frame and brick veneer, the house offers excellent separation of the living and sleeping areas. The study on the ground floor has a clothes closet and could serve as a fourth bedroom if desired. The living room provides plenty of unbroken wall areas, permitting various possibilities for furniture arrangement. The basement, which extends below the bedrooms, contains the laundry, storage and furnace rooms as well as a recreation room.

The total floor area is 1,362 square feet, and the exterior dimensions are 38 feet by 35 feet. Working drawings for this house, known as Design 763, may be obtained from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation at minimum cost.

Many Things Contribute To Satisfactory Heating

Anything from a crack in the door frame to the location of a piece of furniture can affect the heating in your home.

If extra-cold days cause you to reach with one hand for an extra sweater while the other itches to turn up the thermostat again, don't be too quick to blame the heating equipment.

There are things you can do to make it work better, saving you expense while it keeps you comfortable.

LOOSE FILL

Proper insulation is important to begin with. Chances are that this is something the builder took care of when the house went up. There's little that can be done by you except in unfinished areas. If the area overhead is unfinished, check to see that there's insulation between the ceiling joists. Pour in two to four inches of loose-fill insulation to do the job.

Drafts from around doors and windows can be eliminated with weatherstripping. Felt, metal and rubber are the materials from which you can choose, with felt being the cheapest but the least durable.

CALM DAY

Weatherstripping closes up openings between sash and frame. For openings in the frame itself use caulk. Pick a calm day to mount a ladder so that you can examine the frame where it joins the building. A caulk gun will provide a ribbon-like strip of the putty-like substance. Pre-formed ribbons of caulk can be purchased and simply pressed into place. In this form, caulk is expensive. If it's a cold day, leave the caulking compound in warm place before using it.

Your work will be wasted effort if windows aren't closed properly. Unless purposely opened for ventilation, the window should be closed tightly and locked.

Even with a caulked weatherstripped, locked window you may feel a draft. It's not coming from the outside. The air next to the cold glass cools off, creates a down draft.

PULL SHADES

Curtains, drapes and shades all help. Draw drapes in the evening to conserve heat. The air trapped behind them serves as insulation, also.

A closet on an outside wall is a cold place. Don't try to do anything about it, just keep

BEASTALL ADVISES

Onions by Set or Seed? Here's Helpful Analysis

By JACK BEASTALL

Onion sets, which are small, mature onions grown from seed the previous year, seem to be more popular with home gardeners than packets of onion seed.

Several standard varieties of the spring sown group are used to produce onion sets, such as Yellow Globe Danvers, Ebenezer, Red Wethersfield, Red Globe and White Globe. These are sold as yellow, red, or white sets.

Seed is sown thickly so that the plants are unable to produce full-size bulbs, about 175 seeds to the foot in a one-inch drill.

In the home garden the drills may be made one-half inch deep with a rake having teeth one inch apart. The seed is then sown in the drills at the rate of one-half ounce to the square yard of seed bed, during early June.

No thinning-out of the seedlings is necessary, and the small bulbs that form should be thoroughly mature before lifting. They are dried in a warm airy atmosphere in the greenhouse, sunporch, or ventilated cold frame, then cleaned and stored.

PLANT EARLY

For sets, select bulbs from three-eighths inch to one-half inch in diameter, using the larger ones for soups and stews. Plant as soon as the soil can be worked in spring, pressing the bulbs into the soil until only the tip is showing, with about an eight-inch spacing.

Onion sets give quite a good crop although keeping qualities are seldom equal to a late-keeping variety grown from seed.

No matter how much we may have protested using

Jack

It is quite easy for the home gardener to confuse sets and multipliers, also tree and potato onions, and sometimes we can see the names and descriptions mixed in the seed catalogs.

Each onion set produces one large single bulb, but a single multiplier always produces a cluster of small bulbs. The Canadian multiplier and the English shallot return several small bulbs for each bulb planted.

The Tree or Egyptian onion produces a cluster of little bulbs at the top of the stalk, sometimes called top sets. The bottom bulb also divides as with the multiplier.

IN CLUSTERS

Tree onions make excellent salad or bunching onions with a flavor decidedly preferred among salad addicts.

The potato onion forms a cluster of large cloves at, or just below, the surface of the soil. These are flattish, pleasantly mild and store well.

Potato onions are often used in milder districts where the soils are unsuited to the growing of the regular onions.

Garlic, the trick up the sleeve of every good cook, is the strongest flavored of all the onion family.

No matter how much we may have protested using

THE WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

Flowering climbing plants, such as clematis, jasmine, wisteria and honeysuckle may all be planted at this time if soil can be well prepared. They will make better growth for this summer than if planted in late spring.

Cuttings taken from various bedding plants last fall will have rooted while kept indoors, and now may be potted separately, or planted out into flats of soil. Have the soil mixtures only slightly moist when transplanting, and spray foliage occasionally to supply moisture until re-established and growing in a cool, light place indoors.

Clean inside glass of greenhouse frequently, and outside when weather permits, to take advantage of lengthening and strengthening daylight.

Arrange vegetable garden plan on paper; in general, plant root crops where top crops grew last year. Grow in quantity only those vegetables enjoyed by all the family, limiting the less popular kinds to sufficient for them to have only occasionaly. Try new kinds of vegetables, as you do new flowers.

Dig root of rhubarb for forcing. Lay a leaf exposed on soil surface for few days before planting in a deep box or tub. Place in a dark warm place, and give tepid water enough to keep the soil moist.

About 1,500 acres were planted to soybeans in Australia this year, the country's first major attempt at growing the crop commercially.

Planning to remodel the kitchen? Pay special attention to the sink, because most work is done there, says a home economist.

The sink should be located so that you can move easily from it to the range, said Professor Rose Steidl of Cornell University. Also allow for enough storage room and counter space around the sink.

Besides the customary perch outside the entrance-way, it's often a good idea to arrange a small feeding area, on which bread crumbs and the odd piece of suet may be offered.

Birds vary greatly in the size of house they prefer, and the size of the entrance hole. A visit to your public library should solve the problem of dimensions.

OUTDOOR REPORT BY Doug Peden

Traditionally, the Canadian or American gunner has always been intrigued by the biggest and most powerful shotgun he could buy—a full-choke 12-gauge, the kind which would give the English or European bird-buster a case of the shudders.

Whether or not he could carry it comfortably or swing it easily never seemed very important. He was happy as long as he knew that he could blast feathers out as far as the next guy.

Now it seems that tradition is being shot full of holes and a lot of our scatter-gunned are beginning to think of comfort and efficiency.

Except for the boys who do most of their shooting from a duck blind, more and more astute gunners are realizing that for every shot they fire at upland game birds, they walk over a fair chunk of territory. And at the end of a six-hour hike, each extra pound can seem like five.

More and more sportsmen are learning that a light, fast-handling weapon, say a 20-bore, swings up and on and kills a bird so much faster than a cumbersome 12 that the extra length and weight are often a handicap in bird shooting.

With a light gun, wing-shooting gets back to what it originally was, an art rather than an exercise in anti-aircraft artillery.

It Has Grown Up With a Vengeance

Anyway, most of us haven't the ability to down birds consistently at more than 45 yards, and with a sweet-swinging firearm a lot of grouse and pheasants are downed that would have been into the bush before a big 12 was lined up.

We select the 20-gauge among the lighter guns because it is the happy medium. The 16 doesn't differ enough from the traditional 12 and the 410-bore doesn't toss a big enough load of shot for all-around shooting.

Manufacturers have anticipated the trend toward comfort and efficiency, not only by redesigning their 20-bore products for greater handling speed, but they have also turned to lighter metals, even synthetics like nylon and fibreglas to reduce weight.

Ammunition companies are doing their part by taking advantage of modern high-density powders and compact wad columns to increase the potency of the 20. Even a standard-length 20-gauge shell can now be loaded with 1½ ounces of shot, once the normal 12-gauge load.

And the three-inch variety of shell, tagged a magnum, is loaded with 3½ ounces, or, in one U.S. brand, a full 1¼ ounces of pellets.

No sir, the once-despised little 20 is no longer a gal's gun, in either weapons to buy or shells to shoot. It has grown up with a vengeance.

Sure enough, it has become a thinking man's weapon with a shooting man's wallop.

There are times when bowling seems hardly worth while.

Rolling an 817, including one 363 game, at fivepins and failing to get into the top three of a dozen bowlers, can make life difficult.

May Wallis crashed 800 in Capital's championship bowling last week and was mollified to find that several other pin-busters were sizzling at the same time.

To reach the finals and a shot at Reg Waggoner's six-week-old title, Doug Mann rolled 884 (266, 347, 271), Cec McRae turned in 879 (280, 235, 264), and Cy Wallis came up with 862 (246, 328, 288).

Apparently exhausted by all this effort the threesome were joined by Reg in a parade of much lower scores in the final roll-off.

Hoop Player Dies

FRESNO, Calif. (AP)—A high school basketball player, injured during practice Thursday, died in hospital Friday night after emergency surgery. Dennis Smith, 16, a junior guard, was struck in the head by a basketball another player had kicked.

TIME TO REST . . . WAIT

Skip's comfort is aim of third Beth Sealy (right) as Flora Martin awaits outcome of games between rival rinks in ladies' district playdowns at Victoria Curling Club. Mrs. Martin's rink finished round-robin with 8-3 record to clinch at least tie for top spot, and berth in Island finals. See story below. (Times Photo by Bill Halkett.)

CURLING PROBLEM

Women Curlers Short of Time

A rink that has played the majority of its games minus a lead today stands in the best position to claim the Victoria zone ladies' curling championship.

Mrs. Flora Martin's rink has completed the 12-rink round-robin zone playdowns with eight victories and three losses. The worst that can happen is a playoff for the zone honor.

Only two other rinks stand a mathematical chance of tying Mrs. Martin.

Whether or not the rinks still alive are permitted a chance to tie Mrs. Martin is a problem that seems to be creating some amount of confusion among the ladies.

A zone winner must be declared by Monday.

Mrs. Martin's rink is the only one to play all of its 11 games.

Some rinks have not yet played all 11 games, and it seems almost impossible for them to complete their schedules.

Rinks who suffered four or more losses are definitely out.

Still in the running, however, are foursomes skipped by Doris Fraser and Betty Stubbs.

BEST CHANCE

Mrs. Stubbs' rink, with its 6-3 won-lost record, is in the best position to force a playoff for the zone title.

Mrs. Fraser dashed the hopes of Mrs. Renee Robbins Friday afternoon and then knocked out Mrs. Isabell Walkley's foursome, 11-10, this morning. The two victories boosted Mrs. Fraser's record to 5-3.

The round-robin tourney will wind up Sunday.

The Martin rink started out the event with Flora calling shots for Ella MacDonald, Bessey Day and Beth Sealy.

Mrs. MacDonald, however, suffered a back injury after the second game and has been unable to play in any of the rink's remaining games.

Winning rink will enter the Island finals at Port Alberni next Friday, with the Island champions moving on to the provincial championships at Vernon Feb. 15-18.

Other good scores at Strathcona alleys included: Cee Dixon, 589 (212); Roy Begg and Roy Bussey tied at 357; John Elves, 556 (220); Gord Rawnsley, 553; Sheldon Nipp, 548 (233), and Phil Moser, 546 (212).

In Gibson's mixed tenpin league, Don Shaw showed the way with 589 (205, 202), followed by Colin Butts, 571 (222, 207), and Wilbur Webb with 550 (203).

Next in line were his wife, May, with 240; Reg Waggoner with 240 (fewer games bowled); Stan Bell Jr. with 237, and Stan Sr. with 231.

SKATERS SHOULDN'T SQUAWK . . . TEMPERATURE CONTROLLED

Squaw Valley Ice Has Quality

By CHARLES McMURTRY
SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (AP)—How, asks a surprised Bill Kerth, could anyone doubt the quality of Squaw Valley's ice?

Don't they know, exclaims the director of skating events for the Feb. 18-28 Winter Olympics, that Juhani Jarvinen set a world record the first time the rink was used in competition?

That was last February at the North American Games, which drew 25 of Europe's best speed skaters. In the opening event, Jarvinen sped 1,500 metres in 2.06.3.

They'd been trying for years to beat the record by a tenth of a second," Kerth elaborated. "Jarvinen cut 2.3 seconds off the record."

The same rink will be used for the Olympics as for the North American—but some of the equipment has been improved. Kerth was director of skating events for the North American also.

Europeans came to Squaw Valley last winter openly skeptical of American ability to freeze ice properly artificially. After Jarvinen set his world record and others turned in their best individual times, the complaints ceased. Most praised the rink.

"Actually, with our ability to control the ice surface temperature by mechanical means—rather than depending upon nature's temperatures—we can more closely approach the ideal skating surface," Kerth said.

Ideal ice surface temperatures are 26 to 30 degrees for figure and speed skating and 15 to 18 degrees for hockey. These temperatures can be maintained artificially on the big main arena, which is indoors.

This will be the first time Olympic skating events ever have been held under a roof. Figure skaters and hockey players especially should benefit, because there'll be no wind or snow to hamper them.

The main arena will be 85 by 193 feet—the size determined by the needs of hockey. The speed rinks will be an oval 600 feet long, 300 across and with a skating rink 46 feet wide.

A rink can be resurfaced in 10 minutes, Kerth said. And the new surface will be almost identical with the last.

Steel Holds Key to U.S. Economy

NEW YORK (AP) — The steel industry appears to hold the key to the price situation in the United States economy. Chairman Roger Blough of the United States Steel Corp. hinted that steel prices may be increased before the year ends but that an increase might not be as large as those which followed labor settlement in the past.

Producers of industrial and consumer goods say they believe the current high level of prices may remain about the same in the first half of this year but that steel price increase would bring on increases by many industries.

There is talk in the furniture industry about the likelihood of higher prices. Car makers say they will have to wait to see what steel does.

SEES PRICE INDEX UP

Ewan Clague, commissioner of labor statistics, forecast a gradual rise in the government's consumer price index through 1960.

There were demands for both tighter and easier credit.

Dr. Gordon W. Mc Kinley, director of economic and investment research for Prudential Insurance Co., recommended a federal law putting a maximum of 24 months on consumer credit.

The new president of the National Association of Home Builders, Martin L. Bartling Jr., said that easier credit is needed or there will be a drop of between 200,000 and 250,000 in the number of new homes started this year.

The automobile industry built car No. 2,000,000 of the 1960 model year. It reached the mark a week earlier than last year. The week's production was about 178,000 cars, a four-year high.

New Vauxhall Line Soon For Canada

LONDON (Reuters) — Vauxhall Motors, British subsidiary of General Motors, Friday announced a new line of cars for the Canadian market.

The Envoy, a variant of the four-cylinder Victor manufactured in England, will be produced for Canadian consumption in four models—the standard, Special, the De Luxe Custom and the Sherwood, a station wagon.

The models differ from the Victor in appearance but have a mechanical specification based on the English version.

The radiator grille, and combined parking lights and indicators have a "horizontal" appearance which gives the car a low, wide look from the front. At the rear, the tail lights, indicators and reflectors are incorporated in a slusher assembly.

$15,000 Bail In Vancouver Contempt Case

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bail was set at $15,000 Friday for Clyde W. Thornton, director of Union Contractors Ltd., pending hearing of contempt of court proceedings against him next Tuesday.

Mr. Justice T. G. Norris set the bail in Supreme Court after he was told Thornton threatened the man who tried to serve papers on him and had to be chased down the street before the papers could be served.

Thornton was named in a contempt application in connection with the payment by the British Columbia department of highways of $75,000 to his bank at Bonners Ferry, Idaho, after Mr. Justice Norris had ordered that the money be paid to a trust company here.

Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi is also named in the contempt application.

Oil Deliveries, Gas Sales Up During November

OTTAWA (CP) — Net oil deliveries through Canadian pipelines totalled 24,068,978 barrels in November, up 2.8 per cent from a year earlier, the bureau of statistics has reported.

That brought deliveries in the first 11 months of last year to 279,606,684 barrels, a rise of 3.24 per cent from 1958 levels.

November deliveries showed increases in all provinces except Manitoba and Ontario.

The bureau also reported a sharp increase in November sales of natural gas. They totalled 28,346,674,000 cubic feet, up about 50 per cent from November 1958.

Natural gas sales in the January-November period rose to 249,822,954,000 cubic feet from 179,735,257,000 in the corresponding period of 1958. Eleven-month revenues rose to $139,490,612 from $99,791,508.

U.K. Buying Power Drop Hits Canadian Markets

By GREG MACDONALD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian stock markets, despite resistance against a New York decline, fell this week for the third time in as many weeks.

Industrials, which have been the hardest hit, now have gone down nearly 14 points on the Toronto index since Jan. 3.

A substantial decline in the amount of United Kingdom and other European buying power on Canadian markets has been quoted by some investors as one reason for the decline.

Other factors are the current tight money situation and the November U.S. presidential election which already has begun to cast a shadow over the market.

BOND INTEREST

Another reason quoted by investors, and perhaps one of the most prominent, is the fact that much of the buying power is being taken away from stock markets and put into bonds which are showing higher yields. Many investors are taking advantage of the 6 per cent yields or government bonds and the even higher yields on corporate bonds.

Action by Laramque gold mines highlighted the mining market. The issue traded heavily on news of a new drill hole.

Its parent company, Teck-Hughes, also traded actively as did several other mines which are located in that area of northern Quebec.

Coppers had a rough week with 17 of the 27 issues listed showing declines.

INDUSTRIALS LOWER

On the industrial side all sections were down. Banks suffered the biggest losses with five of the six listed declining. Steels came next with eight of the 11 on the Toronto board showing losses.

Western oils, affected by the gas export hearings which have been under way in Ottawa for the last two weeks, were down almost 2 to 1 on the Toronto board.

But despite the poor showing on the markets there were a few features.

IN SAANICH

Industrial Planning Backed

A comprehensive town planning report, urging the complete re-designing and expansion of the existing industrial zone in Saanich to attract new light industries, received the full support today of the president of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

Alan Pendray said Saanich planners are on the "right track" in urging major changes to the municipality's industrial zone to permit development of a well-designed industrial site.

"NO WAY OUT"

"Planning industrial sites is essential if we want to attract new light industries to this area," he said. "There is no way out."

He said the present zones are so badly planned that they discouraged industries from coming here. Industries are scattered here and there. Location, sites and roads are badly planned, he said.

He said other Canadian cities, like Calgary, had established well-planned industrial sites which are proving "going concerns."

The industrial zoning report prepared by town planner Tony Parr recommends the complete redesigning of the existing Saanich industrial zone, bounded on the east by Douglas, south by the municipal boundary, west by Tennyson and north by the Trans-Canada Highway.

NEW BOLD PLAN

He recommended a special public works plan for the area to make it attractive for industry by changing the existing road pattern in the area and demolishing old houses no longer suitable as residences.

He further advocates strict regulations to govern the appearance of new industrial buildings, off-street parking facilities and landscaping.

Expansion of the industrial zones by at least 75 acres is also urged by Mr. Parr.

He said that a well-planned industrial site would eliminate zoning conflicts between residents and industry.

Curtis Urges City To Pay for Bust

Ald. Austin Curtis intends to recommend that city council pay a $350 commission for a concrete bust of Queen Elizabeth and set it up in Beacon Hill Park.

The bust, now ready, sculptress Peggy Walton Packard wrote council, was commissioned by Ald. Curtis' royal tour committee last summer on the understanding that cost would be shared by the other municipalities.

But Esquimalt washed its hands of the project at inter-municipal committee and Oak Bay said it would not contribute to the additional $650 cost of a pedestal and landscaping.

LOGGER KILLED

WILLIAMS LAKE—George David Bell, 21, of Williams Lake, was killed here Thursday when struck by a steel stake while unloading a logging truck. Police said the stake broke loose and hit Bell.

LOCAL BRIEFS

Donald R. Ferguson, Brentwood, and Leo J. H. Past, Calgary, Friday in city police court were sentenced to six months each in Oakalla after being found guilty of stealing a car.

In addition Ferguson received one month, concurrent, for driving while under suspension.

Magistrate William Ostler said he would recommend the pair be sent to the Haney correctional institution where they would come under discipline and learn a trade.

PREMIER'S ILLNESS MAY DAMPEN LEGISLATURE AS ELECTION PROSPECTS MOUNT

Without the 'Big Voice' Rough-and-Tumble Will Be Delayed

By PETE LOUDON

Times Legislative Reporter
Premier Bennett's illness may throw a damper over the session of the B.C. legislature which opens next Thursday.

Political observers have been expecting real "knock-about" debates during the session, which most believe will almost certainly be followed by a general election.

With the election in the offing, the whole eight-year record of Social Credit administration will be on the line as the House meets.

But indications are the premier, who normally dominates the House and is the main target of opposition attacks, will be missing for at least the first two weeks.

Back for Budget?

The all-important budget speech, which Mr. Bennett makes as finance minister, is scheduled for the second week of February. It is questionable whether Mr. Bennett will be fully recovered in time to deliver it.

Standing of the House as it begins its fourth session is Social Credit 38, CCF 10, Liberals 3, Labor 1.

But at least three will be missing at the opening. In addition to Mr. Bennett, P. "Archie" Gibbs, Oak Bay Liberal, and Thomas Bate, Point Grey Social Crediter, are on the sick list.

The session will be notable in that Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross will don his plumed hat for the last time before retirement. His Speech from the Throne is expected to be one of the longest he has delivered.

The premier is aiming for a "happy" session with a maximum of budgetary handouts and a minimum of new legislation, hoping to keep argument to a dull roar.

There are hints of new largesse—using some $12,000,000 which last year he had to take out of current revenues to meet charges on his direct debt. The debt now is transferred to the "self-liquidating" columns of the books of the PGE, the B.C. Power Commission and the Highways and Bridges Toll Authority.

Dependent on his revenues, expected to be high in a record $300,000,000 budget, observers optimistically see increases in welfare benefits; civil service salaries, homeowner grants, highway construction and municipal aid for school projects.

With an election on the horizon, they see the government soft-pedalling the drive for curbs on labor unions which marked the 1959 session.

But the CCF ranks, if they have no new controversies, do draw on a bank of old ones to draw on.

Gagliardi Target

Bitter debates will occur on the development of power and the Shrum Report which came in too late for the session last year. They will fight again for repeal of Bill 43 (the Trade Unions Act), and it's almost certain they will press new attacks on Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi and recent allegations of patronage in the awarding of highway construction contracts.

CCF Leader Robert Strachan says this mainly will be a "power" session.

Opposition ranks will probably filibuster the Peace River power development plans, maintaining the consumer will be hurt unless the project is saved for public development instead of by Wenner-Gren interests.

They will pound out the refrain: "Public power must be cheaper—there are no private profits to pay, and no corporation taxes."

Liberal Attack

Mr. Strachan will speak with authority for labor in B.C. Although the impending partnership of the CCF and the CLC-BCFL in a new party is not yet complete, the recent brief to cabinet by the B.C. Federation of Labor was so consistent with CCF policies it appeared as a vote of confidence.

The three-man Liberal section will attack the Bennett bookkeeping system as misleading and wasteful. They will call again for a complete review and revision of the present system of forest management—charging that only the five or six largest firms can now compete for development rights.

They will likely join with the CCF and lone independent and patriarch of the House, Tom Uphill, in again demanding the publication of the Carothers' Report on civil service bargaining.

The premier is not expected to budge on this, but as a salve to the government workers, likely will announce another small boost in their salary scale.

But perhaps more important, in view of the federal government's reluctance to meet employee wage requests, a wage boost in B.C. would place the federal Conservative government, (which Mr. Bennett continually attacks) in a poor light—and react to the premier's benefit on polling day.

Of paramount importance at the municipal level is the need for more and more schools and the difficulty school boards are having in selling their construction bonds. The premier said last week the government has purchased $10,000,000 of the last $12,000,000 of school bonds issued.

Education Aid

Education Minister Peterson said in North Vancouver the government is preparing additional assistance. A letter from financial adviser Dr. J. V. Fisher has indicated the same.

It is expected the government will take some action this session to raise money by the sale of debentures and make it available to the school boards. Otherwise shift systems may be again in vogue in September—which would hurt if an election was held that month. June or September are most common guesses.

On the health scene, Health Minister Eric Martin has already announced the government chronic hospital plan likely will be in operation this spring.

The scheme would extend BCHIS coverage to "chronic" patients if the municipalities provide hospital facilities.

The definition of chronic will be those patients who can be fully rehabilitated.

The premier has made public speeches promising the start this year of a $10,000,000 highway program extending through the next decade. This is expected to be most obvious in heavily populated areas. There will be new assistance to road maintenance where arterial highways pass through municipalities, the premier has indicated—Vancouver profiting greatly.

Soft Pedalled

Two important investigations are underway on behalf of the provincial government—the Chant royal commission on education and the American Psychiatric Association probe of mental health services. But officials doubt either one of these will be complete and reports made before the summer months.

Accordingly, discussion on either of these subjects likely will be curtailed . . . but almost everything else will be wide open.

VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, JAN. 23, 1960—PAGE 15

MONTE ROBERTS

A great new concept of military materiel was unfolded in the past two days by Canada's Associate Minister of National Defence, Hon. Pierre Sevigny.

Mr. Sevigny announced to the House of Commons that Canada is negotiating with the United States on a "submarine rental."

That the rented submarine might be added to the RCN fleet based at Esquimalt is of only parochial interest.

The great new concept which leaps to mind on reading Mr. Sevigny's pronouncement is this:

Why not a lease-rental plan for all of Canada's defence needs?

It isn't clear, at this stage, whether Canada's rental of a U.S. sub will be on a ten-cents-per-mile basis, plus gas and oil. (With, of course, a deposit unless Canada possesses a credit card. Possibly a Diner's Club Card, with monthly billing, would be adequate.)

It is more likely Canada would go for the more economical (on a long term basis) lease-rental plan, which is already so popular with firms operating fleets of taxis, trucks, or salesmen's cars.

The U-Drive car rental agencies are the pioneers in this field, and successful pioneers they are, indeed.

Under this type of plan—as you well know—the company owning the taxis, trucks, or cars rents them at a fixed fee per month, and includes servicing, oil change, lubrication, 1,000-mile check-ups, and replacements when the new models come in.

To the rent-a-car, rent-a-truck, rent-a-bus plan, what is more logical than to add a rent-a-sub plan?

And, indeed, a rent-a-destroyer, rent-a-tank, rent-a-plane, rent-a-jeep, rent-an-A-Bomb, rent-a-missile plan.

No capital outlay, no maintenance headaches, pay-as-you-go, and satisfaction guaranteed.

There is a great field here for the entrepreneurs of build-for-lease—who are already creating great office buildings, factories, industrial and residential developments on a long-term lease basis.

I only hope the rent-a-sub plan will catch on.

It could be the solution for Canada's national defence procurement policy which—as I suspect I've said before—consists of:

"We don't know quite what we need, but if we did, we're sure we couldn't afford it."

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Condition of Oak Bay Liberal legislative member P. A. (Archie) Gibbs was reported as "fairly good" today by Royal Jubilee Hospital officials.

Mr. Gibbs underwent a serious operation Thursday.

Fire caused by cleaning solvent set fire to grease in a service pit at BA Junction Service, 1532 Fort, at 11:27 p.m. Friday, but the blaze was put out by proprietor Murray Jones before it got away.

Firemen said there was no damage in the blaze, which happened when the garage floor was being cleaned.

Reeve George Chatterton and members of Saanich council today toured the municipality to inform themselves of some of the municipalities drainage and road problems.

Municipal engineer Neville Life accompanied them.

Dr. Malcolm G. Taylor, 45, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Taylor, 1810, Haughton, associate professor of political economy, University of Toronto, is leaving to become principal of the new University of Alberta in Calgary.

Dr. Taylor will also have the status of vice-president.

His parents have been residents of Victoria six years.

British-Israel World Federation Club will hear an address Monday at 3 p.m. in Woodsworth Hall by E. W. Abraham.

Subject will be "Faith For These Days."

Close to 4,500 free chest X-rays have been taken in HMC Dockyard and in downtown Victoria since the current anti-TB drive started Monday.

The campaign will continue another five weeks, and it is expected 12,000 persons will have been X-rayed in the city centre.

This is the most destitute state in the world," Jaycee president Peter Forward said today, "and we are appealing to all Victorians to donate clothing."

Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce, in collaboration with World Refugee Year Organization, is arranging for a shipment of clothing from Victoria to Hong Kong.

The clinic will be opened between 5 and 7 p.m.

"I hope young adults won't put off getting their third or second polio vaccine," said Dr. Beattie. "Incidence of polio among adults is on the increase."

Annual meeting of the War Pioneers of Canada, Victoria branch, will be held at 617 Fort Street, at 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

Dr. A. N. Beattie, Saanich medical health officer, today urged adults who received polio injections last May and June to get their second or third shots at the health clinic, 464 Gore Road, on Tuesday.

The clinic will be opened between 5 and 7 p.m.

"I hope young adults won't put off getting their third or second polio vaccine," said Dr. Beattie. "Incidence of polio among adults is on the increase."

Fourth session of the 25th Legislature of the Province of British Columbia, convenes in the Parliament Buildings next Thursday afternoon. On that day and in the weeks to follow, wives of the Lieutenant-Governor, the Premier, the Speaker, the members of the Executive Council, as well as the two woman members of the Legislative Assembly, will take a prominent part in social activities arranged during the sitting of the House. Commencing with the opening ceremonies, the Premier's reception later in the afternoon and the State Ball in Government House that evening, many luncheon teas, dinners and receptions have been planned for the days ahead.

Mrs. Buda Brown, member of the Legislative Assembly for Vancouver-Point Grey for more than three years, will sit on the government side of the House next Thursday afternoon. Ultra-feminine in appearance, and a lover of people, Mrs. Brown will be prominent at all social gatherings. However, a hard core of common sense, gained through years of public service, makes her keenly aware of the problems that will be debated during the session, and her voice will often be heard offering solutions from the women's viewpoint. ## A WRITER'S DIARY

By ROBERTSON DAVIES

Why is it that today, a quarter of a century after his death, the music of Frederick Delius is still so little known on this continent? Schingeler, the German music critic, did not hesitate to place Delius "among the very greatest"; Sir Edward Elgar wrote most movingly about the "beauty and poetry" of Delius' music, and Sir Hugh Allan said that some of it was "the most heart-breaking music in the world." To Sir Thomas Beecham, Delius is "the last great apostle in our time of romance, emotion and beauty in music."

Is it because Delius was an Englishman that he is overlooked by North American taste, which is dominated in classical music by Europe, and in contemporary work by U.S. composers?

But Delius was not so much an Englishman as all that; his work belongs to no national school.

Let us hope that the new biography of him by Sir Thomas Beecham will arouse the sluggish interest of North America. Beecham knew Delius well and owed much to him for it was Delius who persuaded the young Beecham that his career lay in conducting, rather than in composition.

And, in course of time, it came about that Delius owed much to Beecham, for it was the great conductor who organized the festival of the composer's work which took place in London in October and November of 1929.

Rarely can there have been a more stirring tribute to a living composer than this series of six splendid concerts at the Queen's Hall; rarely was there a more dramatic and moving spectacle in the world of music than the aftermath of each of these concerts, when the composer, paralyzed and blind, was carried from the concert-hall to the Langham Hotel across the street, through crowds of cheering enthusiasts.

Beecham was indeed a friend to Delius. As we read his book we may wish that life might send each of us one such friend.

In Public

The public character of Sir Thomas Beecham, which he has done much to create, is of an imperious, witty autocrat, scolding audiences and ruling orchestras with a baton like a whip. Stories about him are countless.

To the fireman of a rehearsal hall where Dame Ethel Smyth had interrupted his rehearsal of one of her works—"Throw that woman out!" To an orchestra, at the end of a morning rehearsal—"I shall see you all at half-past eight, gentlemen—in white shirts."

To a taxi driver, throwing him his fur coat—"Follow me to my hotel—at walking pace."

It is the great Beecham, one of the foremost conductors of our time, who supports this reputation. But there is another Beecham—the man of noble spirit, the staunch friend—and he is who promised Delius' wife, Jelka, that this life would be written, and who has faithfully carried out his promise in his eightieth year.

The book is a model of its kind. The lives of composers and authors are rarely rich in incident, and sometimes ploughmen spin them out to wearisome length. In 222 pages Beecham has said all that can fittingly be said. He has paid

ROLOFF BENY WINS MEDAL FOR BOOK

LONDON (Reuters)—A Canadian photographer-painter has won a prize for a picture book of the Mediterranean region at the international art book festival in Leipzig, East Germany, his London publishers said today.

A book called Thrones of Earth and Heaven, by Roloff Beny of Lethbridge, won silver medal for "excellence of book reproduction," a spokesman for the publishers, Thames and Hudson, said.

The book is a reproduction of photographs and paintings of countries bordering the Mediterranean. Texts are by a number of well-known artists and writers, among them Rose Macaulay and Stephen Spender.

DDF COMPETITOR

Preliminary Round For 'Fireside' Entry

A full length comedy with a cast of two is something of a rarity in the theatre. "The Fourposter," which Fireside Players will present next Thursday, Friday and Saturday at Metropolitan Church Hill, is one of the most noted of its kind on the contemporary stage.

The story of a married couple through all the phases of married life, from honeymoon to old age, it demands infinite variety and authority from the actors, virtuosity on the part of the director and an apt hand with costuming and make-up.

Directed by Dorothea House, with Gordon Courtenay and Marilyn Armstrong as the man and wife, it is the Fire-side Players' Dominion Drama Festival entry.

Preliminary judging will take place next week, when Miss Janie Stevenson of the University of British Columbia Drama Department, will view one of the performances. During the coming week Miss Stevenson and Franklin R. Johnson, president of the B.C. Drama Association, will meet to select the six competitors out of 16 entries, that will constitute the B.C. regional festival to be held in Victoria March 21-26.

ART IN REVIEW

By MONCRIEFF WILLIAMSON

Nanaimo Makes a Start Toward Art Appreciation

The "Painting People" exhibition now touring the Island was arranged by the Vancouver Art Gallery, sponsored by the Canada Council, and is being circulated by the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria. On Jan. 29 it will be on view at Duncan and this week it is on view at Courtenay. Last weekend I drove to Nanaimo especially to see it and I now hope it will be possible to bring this interesting exhibition to Victoria before it continues its tour on the mainland.

Mrs. J. L. Shadbolt, director of education for Vancouver Art Gallery assembled this small exhibition of ten medium sized canvases for the purpose of showing us a variety of approaches in painting the human figure.

Ten approaches to be precise, ranging Williamson from direct portraiture to the hazy figure in background composition, popular with those who favour symbol and allegory.

All artists exhibiting are from Vancouver with the exception of Toronto painter Mashel Tieltebaum, and even he seems to fit snugly into the subdued style of painting favored by the other nine. Although when first entering the exhibition one receives the impression that this is a one-man show, and that all the works are by one artist, after a few minutes each work, isolated alongside its explanatory text, becomes starkly individual.

Demonstration

It is an effect which is rather difficult to explain because despite the inclusion of artists such as Plaskett and Don Jarvis, the uniformity in styles cuts down the element of variety. The exhibition, in fact, becomes not so much an exciting event, but a sound demonstration of the problems set when man sets out to paint his fellows.

And this is exactly what Mrs. Shadbolt had in mind when she made her selections, and she is to be congratulated on her thoroughness.

The purpose behind such small circulating exhibitions as "Painting People" is to reach out into corners normally pretty barren and out of the way of the public.

If Dry Skin's a Problem Special Cream Will Help

By PENNY SAVER

Crisp cold days we've been having lately are invigorating but they can certainly cause havoc to a tender complexion. If your skin is beginning to dry up and cause you anxious moments you'll be interested in the special cream for dry skin that's on sale this week. Cream will supply softening oils to your skin to counteract damage done by whipping winds and lower temperatures. Before going to bed put on a layer of this wonder-worker and venture out into the wintry sunshine next morning with no misgivings! Two-ounce bottle will cost you $1.50 as long as the sale lasts.

Another special offer in the cosmetic field is the box containing well-known brand of moisture control preparation for day wear and emulsion for overnight care. These preparations are now on sale at $5 for the two and if I mentioned the name—believe me, you'd be lining up for them!

If you're worried about lines and wrinkles steady use of the emulsion will really go to work for you, leaving your skin soft and dewy fresh. Moisture control will keep your skin clear and healthy.

Short sleeve cardigans are easy to care for ban-lon are now being sold in a style that will look equally good with a skirt or under your favorite suit. Cardigans have Eton collars that are decorated with a neat waffle design that is repeated in the dainty breast pocket. Colof range includes a delicate mauve, soft greens and impeccable white. All are priced at $6.95.

Another good buy are the short sleeved dusters that sell at $2.88. These have generous pockets and you can choose from styles that are either trimmed with piping or lace and ribbon. Dusters will be a cinch to launder—they're of drip-dry cotton.

For information on any of these items give Penny a ring at EV 2-3131.

Radiant Silks and Wool Checks Tops at Spring Fashion Shows

General opinion of 213 editors who watched more than 70 fashion shows last week is that styles are becoming so wearable they will please all women. The changes in silhouette are so slight this season you cannot see much difference in the way each designer interprets the "1960 Look."

If all the "checks" seen this past week are good stock market will be booming. Hounds-tooth checks, pin checks and huge blanket checks all are included. Black and white leads the pack with brown and white running a close second.

Roses run rampant; roses on swim suits, roses on dinner pyjamas, roses embroidered on theatre coats and roses on all types of dresses. Tiny roses and full-blown cabbage roses—your name 'em and some designer is sure to have thought of them.

ABSTRACT PRINTS

If any headlines are to be made they would certainly include silk. This is a feminine, soft season for fashion and silk tells this story more eloquently than any other fabric. The floral print, so diffused, misty and impressionistic last year, this season takes on some of the dynamic qualities of abstract expressionistic painting, and there are silks painted with kaleidoscopic splashes and whirls of color in brilliant new combinations like magenta and turquoise, cerise and yellow, and orange and aqua that only faintly resemble flowers.

A visit with Lily Dache is always a gay and stimulating experience. She is so vibrant and full of life that she makes you see fashion as a tonic.

After the theatre we crossed the street to Sardis where the Playtex Company picked up the tab for coffee and sandwiches she came to every table and had a chat. Ship 'n Shore Blouse Company hosted us to the Schubert Theatre to see Jackie Gleason in "Take Me Along." This musical version of Eugene O'Neill's play "Ah Wilder-ness," was light and fun. After the theatre we crossed the street to Sardis where the boys bought a quart of ice cream and we supplied the hot fudge and pecans. We all agreed that it was the nicest evening we had ever spent.

Two years ago we got word from my husband's sister who lives out of state that they would be glad to send us their seven-year-old boy as he couldn't get along with his sisters and made trouble on the bus so they asked us to take him out.

Then we tried public school. He got all "D's" but the teacher promoted him anyway to be sure she didn't have him in her room again. They suggested an X-ray for his head. We found nothing. The boy is nine, and refuses to learn or obey. What do we do next?

TRROUBLED FOLKS

DEAR FOLKS: A child who rebels against authority and refuses to be educated, could be emotionally disturbed. Do the boy a favor and take him to a child psychiatrist.

Then we tried public school.

He got all "D's" but the teacher promoted him anyway to be sure she didn't have him in her room again. They suggested an X-ray for his head. We found nothing. The boy is nine, and refuses to learn or obey. What do we do next?

Mrs. Marjorie Sturgeon will be soloist.

HAVE YOU A PROBLEM

By Sharing You May Find Solution and Help Others

Housewives! The purpose of this column is for you to use your practical knowledge to help your neighbors.

What we want is answers!

Since the column was begun a week ago, numerous household problems have been presented. But up to now no other readers have come forward with the solution.

That is the idea of the column. It is a clearing house for you to present your own problems and answer those of others.

The author of the column is NOT an expert and does not undertake to provide the answers. What she is doing is presenting the questions to the readers and asking them to help.

So, you household experts, let's hear from you about the questions we have had so far.

Here are five of them, reprinted:

Mrs. M. Mills, 630 Brookleigh Road, Royal Oak, writes: Some six months after we painted our bathroom walls and ceiling with enamel, they began to develop hairline cracks and this situation gradually got worse as time went on. Could you tell us the cause and what we could do to remedy it?

A reader, who merely signs "subscriber," has two problems: How do you remove a grease stain on the back of a rocking chair caused by someone leaning back on the chair with a cream oil on his hair? Also, how do you shine aluminum pans?

Mrs. L. A. M. asks: What can be done to renew or better the appearance of a black cast iron oil stove on a boat? The top is somewhat rusty and does not have a nice smooth, shiny finish.

From Miss R. M. comes: Can you tell me how to remove glue spots (seccotine) from a rayon-silk material without injury color or fabric?

Mrs. H. Waldo, 3220 Service Street, would like to know if you can tell her where she can have the down in a comforter put into a new cover (not just re-covered). It is an expensive comforter and since sending to the cleaners is shedding the down. It is no longer downproof.

W. K. asks: In case of papering a room where spots and stains appear on the present finish, will these show through the new covering? If so, what can be done to prevent this?

Mrs. M. writes: I have a very old silver egg cup stand with cups and pepper and salt shakers, badly tarnished. Can any readers tell me how to freshen them up?

Mrs. T. R. Miller, 3017 Henderson Road, would like to know how to remove mildew stains from white cotton curtains on her boat. They are heavy, white cotton drill material and dampness in the cabin of the boat has stained them badly.

Mrs. Harry Lay, 1048 Lodge Avenue, would like help with a kitchen asphalt tile floor. Finish has been removed by using cleaning pads: A coat of clear varnish has been put on but this wears off and Mrs. Lay cannot keep the floor clean even with weekly washing and waxing.

Send your answers to the "Have You a Problem" column, care of the women's department of this newspaper.

Your questions and your answers to other's questions will appear as received.

THE WINTER SEASON . . .

There are many pleasant ways to spend the longer winter evenings; reading a good book, watching television, building things, etc. To achieve the maximum pleasure and benefit it is important that your glasses be adequate for the purpose. Have your eyes examined soon and bring the prescription for glasses to either of our two offices where you do benefit from service that is unequalled.

OF ALL PLACES

By HORACE SUTTON

ST. THOMAS, V.I. — Of all the virtuous Atolls, this saintly sandbar has become a bargain basement shaded with palm trees and irrigated with rum. Shopping should be a morning exercise so the sun has a chance to get high before the tourists. Main Street is a jumble of shops offering perhaps the best stocks and certainly the best prices in the near Caribbean.

Places like Little Switzerland, once a small watch store, now has a whole wall of cuckoo clocks, music boxes with changeable records, and enough gorgeous Fornasetti chinaware and furniture to open a Little Italy branch. Elverhoj, when I first saw it a scant decade ago, was a tiny place with a soup bar and a gaggle of seamstresses making island skirts and blouses. Now it has gone up with gold carpet, rakish modern furniture, and a Rue de la Paix air. Its island fashions are selling all over the mainland, and if you want a bowl of soup, get thee to a soup kitchen.

Real Bargains

The Scandinavian Shop with cooled air imported from Sweden, sells Wihlborg's ceramics, Danish silver, and enamelled jewelry. Rilse's has porcelain from Delft, petit point bags from Austria, Baccarat glasses from France at half the New York price.

Drummers stand at the edge of Hibiscus Alley, a bougainvillea bedecked maze of back-alley shops where you can buy madras by the yard at $1.25 in the Bombay Bazaar (it's 50 cents in Madras). Gave Hus, which means gift house in Danish, has rugs from Dominica that resemble the lacey straw carpets of Spain.

Inxtoxants to imbibe are a specialty here in saintly St. Thomas. For instance, an ounce of Revillon's Carnet de Bal which costs $24.75 in New York (slightly higher as they say, west of the Rockies) is $6.95 east of Puerto Rico. Among the joy juice tariffs, consider Beefeater London Dry Gin ($1.50), Drambuie ($3.75), and Teacher's Scotch ($2.50).

Local Poison

Ever since some explorer landed here with the first electrical mixer, daiquiris have become the local poison and are featured in a variety

Take Boat Ride

You have to take a boat ride to get out to dinner at Goodheart's on Hassell Island. Goodheart doesn't have such a good heart that he lets you off with less than six bucks for a steak dinner, but heavens! look at the boat ride you take to France for crepes à la mode de Caen. Elegant dining and dancing with a full-fledged orchestra and bowing maîtres d'hôtel is available in that mammoth tropical aviary called the Virgin Isle Hotel, hereinafter referred to as the V.I. The V.I. has its own pool-with-a-view, a night club, and some elegant new penthouse chambers with Danish teak furniture, double wash basins, and ironing boards where you can lay out any stiff who swallows two bananas daiquiris.

The new late spot here in halo hollow is called the Gramboko which is very proud of its Tropical Seaside Sidewalk Café. Some people call it by the little used term, "Porch." Being near the submarine base, Gramboko is a charming place to get torpedoed. Naturally, it attracts a glittering clientele of fogmen and sub-mariners in whose honor sign hangs over the door which says, "Remember: Compressed Air and Alcohol Don't Mix."

Tailgate Truisms In Mexico

The tailgates of trucks the world over bear witness to the whimsy of their drivers, and the men of México are no exceptions.

Travellers can give their trips an added touch by acquiring enough understanding of Spanish to translate such inscriptions. A few random examples noticed on vehicles in Mexico City:

Here's Smoke in Your Eyes; I Go Slowly, but I'll Get There; If My Woman Complains, I'll Trade Her for a New Model; Over the Rainbow; Notice, Soliciting Sweetheart with Letters of Recommendation.

Country merchants also join in the spirit of things. A funeral parlor in Cuernavaca, for example, is known as Quo Vadis? Another, in the state of Michoacan, is named Don't Run, I'll Wait. In a small town, a tavern on a one-way dead-end street terminating in a cemetery is called The Sure Road. A charcoal vendor in Manizales trumpets "Black Is My Business and Black Is My Name."

Tokyo has eleven principal museums and art galleries—one completely devoted to transportation in Japan since 1872; another solely concerned with Japanese theatre.

Vacations and Travel

20 Victoria Daily Times SAT., JAN. 23, 1960

SPEED HIGHWAY

London to Yorkshire Motorway rolls through English countryside near Upper Hayford. Highway goes under giving access to and from Weedon-Northampton Road. Highway marks major step in big U.K. road program.

Britain's New Motorway Fulfils Lengthy Dream

By CHARLES N. DEFIEUX

Mr. Defieux, well-known west coast journalist, recently completed a series of articles on life in Britain for the Times. This was written on his return to Canada.

"This is the road to the future, put your foot down and relax," said English writer Basil Cardow, who added that he drove the new London-Yorkshire Motorway at 100 m.p.h. "straightaway" is fulfillment of a long-awaited dream.

It was shortly after this that I, too, had a pre-opening trip over the "dual carriageway," or divided highway. We did only 45 in deference to workmen putting in the finishing touches to the road surface. But it felt good.

There are three lanes each way and its all for autos. The general gradient is one in 50: gentle banking allows for 75 m.p.h. around the few curves. The shoulders are hard to permit pull-offs for breakdowns. Bumps? They say that the special machine for testing and measuring bumps, most of them unnoticeable to motorists, shows 23 slight jars to a mile. They also say that the same machines record 30 to the mile on the finest American turnpikes.

Six Junctions

The only places where motorists can join the Motorway area are at the six two-level junctions. Slip roads from the Motorway link up with the more important existing main roads. No pedestrians are allowed on the Motorway and the hitch-hiker, none too prevalent in Britain, will be non-existent. The restriction, it is believed, also includes the hordes of scooters and motorcycle travellers who literally jam the English countryside during the summer and fall vacation months.

Two, or possibly three, "service areas" are planned for the Motorway and are now being built with the same speed and efficiency which has marked the entire construction project. These places will be the only ones where vehicles will be allowed to pull off the Motorway and stop, unless they break down and then follow well-posted regulations requiring them to move onto the hard shoulder and summon help through the many emergency telephones augmenting the extensive patrol system used by Britain's automobile clubs.

Esthetically, the Motorway will blend into the countryside and the evident shock of modernity vanish under the weight of a zest for rural beauty which the Briton zealously guards if he takes it for granted.

Even trees and shrubbery are pinpointed on the models in the headquarters room at Newport Pagnell. The service areas with their picnic grounds should be things of rare delight and restfulness. You see the markers for 500 oak trees to be interplanted with Scotch pine and among the shrubbery markers are the names snowberry, dogwood, elder, veronica and lilac.

Ignore Caution

Today, the Briton is driving the Motorway with less than normal caution, according to reports. It may be that authority will have to hang up a 60 m.p.h. limit, ample in view of the mechanical limits of most of the worn, small cars which predominate due to domestic government restrictions which have blocked purchase of new machines through the imposition of a heavy purchase tax.

Perhaps these words have implied that the London-Yorkshire Motorway is the only highly improvement completed, a-building or planned in Britain. That would be unfortunate and untrue. New projects, of lesser magnitude, are underway all over the country. "Dual carriageways" or divided highways as we call them, are not novelties there. They can be found in many parts of the country.

But don't think the death knell is sounding for the countryside beauty of Britain. The nation's planners and even great construction firms like John Laing and Son, despite the world-wide scope of their projects, still believe you can have tradition and efficiency, beauty and modernity. They're proving it with the London-Yorkshire Motorway.

That's the atmosphere of the room with the models at Newport Pagnell. And, by the way, British Columbia could make a nice family gesture and appreciate contribution to the new London-Yorkshire Motorway. We could supply all the dogwood trees required and let our provincial floral emblem be a lasting symbol of our family friendship.

The Sounding Board

By AUDREY ST. D. JOHNSON

January has always had the name for being a particularly dreary month.

Its reputation is most pointedly emphasized in the "calendar" song by that unique British comedy team, Donald Swann and Michael Flanders, who are "sending" audiences in the United States at the moment.

If you haven't heard the song (along with their tongue-in-cheek version of the origin of Greensleeves and some other laugh-loaded lunacies) I strongly recommend that you tie yourself off to your nearest record dealer.

But back to January — unfortunately, for it is certainly a month we could very well do without.

However, and this is my point, it is not the only one.

February's Hand Overplayed

Or for that matter, February. Despite optimistic claims the average February can produce days a-plenty as grey and raw as any of the year. Sure, the snowdrops are blooming, poor wan little things, and the "darling buds of May" are being heralded by goose-pimples in the shrubbery.

The willows look cold in their fur-finger-stalls and odd-bits of bloom seem pathetically brave and lonely.

No, the real trouble with January is that it is as anticlimactic as an epilogue in a bad play.

Counting Our Future Blessings

If possible, of course, one can pass the time pondering on joys to come. Looking out my window I see it's just come on to rain, with some sleet for good measure. So if you'll pardon me, I think I'll do a little pondering.

On the stimulating prospect, for instance, of having the regional contest of the Dominion Drama Festival in Victoria. Six of the finest full-length productions to be found in British Columbia, vying for the honor of representing the province against Canada's best at the final in Vancouver next May.

On the satisfaction of knowing that this year, for the first time, eight Canadians have been found sufficiently qualified to act as regional adjudicators.

This system replaces the former one of having a British or American adjudicator travel across Canada to judge in all regions.

Under the new setup, French-Canadians will be adjudicating in French language centres; James Dean of Toronto will adjudicate Victoria and Vancouver's Mrs. Dorothy Snider, who is the former Dorothy Davies, who grew up in Victoria, is to go to western Ontario. Calgary's well-known Betty Mitchell will be doing central Ontario.

Music Festival Captures Stars

What an experience for these Canadian theatre men and women, and what an opportunity for them to help weave together the loose threads of Canadian culture.

And then there's the Victoria Music Festival: I'm anticipating a good deal of pleasure and profit from that quarter too. It comes off between April 25 and May 4 and will have the added distinction of an outstanding and well-liked British vocal adjudicator, Roy Hickman, who comes to Canada under auspices of the Canadian Federation of Music Festivals . . . also Boris Roubakine of the Royal Conservatory, a brilliant concert pianist and teacher.

Canadian Players are to brighten Leap Year Night with Shaw's wonderful play, "The Devil's Disciple." It will bring Peter Manning back to the coast where he had so many acting and directing successes, also TV's notable Eric Christensen.

I look forward also to being charmed by the Vienna Choir Boys . . . spending a hilarious couple of hours with vivacious British screwball Joyce Grenfell . . . being up in the clouds with "Brigadoon" . . . participating in the final-night excitement of the DDF at the Queen Elizabeth Theatre . . . visiting the Vancouver Festival to hear Fischer-Dieskau and renew my vivid memories of Marcel Marceau, and . . .

Seeing a little action on the auditorium front!

Oh, well, I expect I can endure January after all.

Besides being bombarded from outer space with cosmic particles this poor old planet is still under a heavy fallout of Martian jokes. If you've heard this one, don't stop us, just blast off.

A Martian was walking along the street minding his own business, whatever that is, when he was approached by a panhandler who pleaded . . . "Can you spare a dime, buddy?"

"What's a dime?" asked the Martian.

"You're right," replied the bum. "Make it a quarter!"

PROFESSOR WAYNEGARTNER, our favorite mad scientist, has just come up with an invention for bachelors who would like to be seen walking down the street with Marilyn Monroe on one arm and Ava Gardner on the other. It's a do-it-yourself tattoo kit.

Our Dallas correspondent cables us about the Texas millionaire's son who decided to run away from home. "Daddy," he cried, "call me a taxi!"

And on the subject of Texas millionaires, we just heard about one who bought Mexico . . . his wife needed closet space.

The following drama took place on a train. As the conductor was making his way down the aisle collecting tickets, he spotted an old man crouched behind a seat. "Hey you," he roared. "Come out here and let's see your ticket!"

"Please sir," cried the old man. "I haven't got a ticket. You see it's this way. My daughter is getting married in Montreal today and she'd be terribly upset if I didn't show up. Please, please I beg you, let me stay on the train so I can go to my daughter's wedding."

Touched by his story, the conductor wiped a tear from his eye and said, "Allright, I'll give you a break. You can stay on the train but sit in a corner and keep quiet!"

As he continued down the aisle, he spotted another old fellow crouched behind another seat. "Wait a minute," he roared, dragging the older out by the collar, "what do you think you're doing? Where's your ticket?"

"Ticket?" shrugged the captive. "I don't know nothin' about tickets. He invited me to the wedding!"

'Rainmaker' Guild's Next Production

Since its successful Christmas production of the fantasy, "Toad of Toad Hall," Victoria Theatre Guild has been concentrating all forces on a very different vehicle, a drama of a drought-dominated American Midwest farm family called "The Rainmaker."

The Rainmaker is the play's "hero," in much the same way that Oliver Derwenter is the hero of "The Silver Whistle." They are both charlatans but lovable, promulgating philosophies that cleanse and clarify the hearts and minds of those with whom they mingle.

Clifford Clarke, who gave such a striking performance as "Toad" plays this part.

With him in the cast are Helen Peaker, playing the shy, diffident daughter whose life is most affected by his presence; and Jim Dulmage, Gerry Guest; Allan Robertson, Ralph Kendall and Binkie Tisdall. Direction is by Victor Mitchell.

The play will be seen at Langham Court Theatre, Feb. 13 to 20.

In the planning stage, for production next April, is the musical thriller, "Night Must Fall," to be directed by Helen Smith.

Phil Lee's Two for the Show

A (Don't Miss)
BB (Worthwhile)

B (For Rainy Days)
AA (Oscar Class)

O (To put in time)

(OSCAR CLASS) "SOUTH PACIFIC" (Royal) — Broadway smash Rodgers and Hammerstein musical hit, "South Pacific," took a long time reaching down since it was made into a movie in 1958. Those seeing it, however, should consider it well worth waiting for.

The songs, ranging from the lilting "Wonderful Guy" to the ethereal "Ballad," have, for the most part, become classics of our day, some destined to carry on and on perhaps until the name of the play is all but forgotten.

And yet the play cannot be minimized. It is, in fact, beneath its gaiety to speak a truth that usually characterizes the works of Rodgers and Hammerstein. In this one the moral examines hate . . . that we are not born to hate one another because of the color of our skin or the shape of our eyes. Hate is an inbred disease, passed on from father to son, from mother to daughter.

As U.S. Navy nurse Nellie Forbush, Mitzi Gaynor is altogether attractive although she is handicapped by the inevitable comparisons by those who may have seen the great Mary Martin in action. As the French planter who falls in love with Nellie Rossano, Brazzi is also good. This part, of course, was played on the stage by the late Ezio Pinza and unless my ear has let me down I would suggest that Pinza's recorded voice was dubbed in for Brazzi. Its richness and range are almost unmistakable.

HOWEVER: THE LEADS often play second fiddle to the small parts in the motion picture version. Certainly one cannot forget Juanita Hall (the only member of the original Broadway cast in the movie) as Bloody Mary, or Ray Walston as the gob in trouble.

John Kerr, as the Marine Lieutenant, who falls in love with the quietly spectacular France Nuyen, is believable and fitting.

Certainly "South Pacific" must be regarded as Victoria's musical treat of the year. There isn't likely to be another one during 1960 as good, let alone better.

61 BUILDING SUPPLIES

RED CEDAR Bevel
SIDING

"Keystone" clear kiln dried siding is the finest available — a quality material for all applications where perfection is required.

With its "grow-in" workability, weather resistance and lasting good looks, "Keystone" clear Western Red Cedar Siding has long been recognized as the standard of quality home construction.

It has a distinctive "shadow line" which enhances any architectural style in any setting, and is used to create a variety of interesting decorative effects on indoor surfaces as well as exterior.

5 GRADES

"CLEAR"
Bevel
SIDING

String of this grade is designed for use where perfection is demanded. It is well milled on a face and edges making it ideal for full length without waste & grain. "CLEAR" for ¾" the width or more from thick edge.

Bevel
SIDING

Appearance closely approaching that of the higher grades is often achieved with siding of this grade while maintaining some characteristics and some cutouts in longer pieces. Craftsmen of even moderate skill find it easy to install. It may be mixed grain (MG).

"B"

Bevel
SIDING

Siding of this grade is recommended for use on sidewall coverings where the distinctive charm of rustic appearance is desired. Pieces are graded from rough to smooth. Surface is exposed. Thick edge may be rough or surfaced.

"C"

Bevel
SIDING

Pieces of this grade have one or more characteristics which are such as — number that the piece is not of a higher grade. Lengths are random with no specified percentages.

5 SIZES

3/4" x 8"
3/4" x 10"
3/4" x 12"
and
1/2" x 6"
1/2" x 8"

Complete Stocks of All Widths and Grades. When You Buy Specify "Key stone" Western Red Cedar Bevel Siding.

Big Filter Dam Built To Clear Water Supply

(From Duncan Bureau)

MAPLE BAY—A puzzling problem in the Maple Bay waterworks system is nearing solution—North Cowichan's consulting engineers hope—with the completion of a 30-foot filtering dam at the source of the Maple Bay water supply on Quamichan Lake.

The trouble was caused by algae which filled the long shallow lake during the summer and clogged the first attempt at a rock filter. Engineers now are making a second attempt with a new dam.

Public works foreman Perry Ross has a crew of men building a breakwater structure with 50 tons of rock. An experimental fill to test the lake bottom sank about one foot in the mud in seven days.

The "strainer" is under construction 100 feet from the water intake structures. The water will be dammed in a 12-foot wide canal after the algae have been strained out.

Engineers believe the filtering dam will clean naturally

FIRST person to receive honorary membership in Chemainus-Crofton Chamber of Commerce is A. E. Craig, former North Cowichan councillor and long-time Chemainus community worker. Chamber action was announced this week.

ALBERNI—A University of British Columbia expert says B.C. is paying practically double the national average in rail freight charges.

William Hughes, chairman of the transportation division of the faculty of economics, said the average cost of a carload of goods transported out of B.C. is nearly $430 per car. Canadian average was $220.

Mr. Hughes said in a speech to the Alberni Chamber of Commerce the rail freight rates have increased by 157 per cent in the last 10 years. With every rise the disparity between B.C. and its competitors grew wider.

SHIP FOUNDERS

Diverted City Tug To Rescue

The Victoria deepsea tow boat Sudbury II, returning to home port after a series of trans-Pacific towing jobs, has been diverted to the aid of a Korean-owned Liberty ship in danger of sinking 900 miles off the Oregon coast.

A Portland based tug, the Salvage Chief, is also on the way.

Sudbury II is expected to reach the scene late Monday or early Tuesday. She was diverted from her homeward route at 6 p.m. Thursday.

The Liberty ship is the Silla. She has cracked deck plates, and reports taking water in the number three hold. The ship also indicated there may be water in the fuel tanks.

The freighter is reported rolling badly in heavy seas and a 25-knot wind. The crew of 34 Koreans aboard do not think to be in immediate peril, but continued heavy weather could bring the ship into a dangerous situation.

The Salvage Chief was ordered to the Silla's assistance by her agents. Sudbury II, commanded by Capt. Hill Wilson, was diverted to give additional aid if needed.

Police Head Quits In Chicago Scandal

Political Feud Breaks in Open

(Times News Services)

CHICAGO — Police Commissioner Timothy J. O'Connor resigned today amid a ballooning scandal of widespread police thievery that rocked his 10,000-man force.

His resignation was announced 30 minutes after Gov. William G. Stratton at an extraordinary press conference threatened to invoke his legislative and administrative powers if Mayor Richard J. Daley didn't clean up the scandal and "clean it up quick."

O'Connor said he was quitting as commissioner because of illness. The commissioner, 31 years a policeman, sat by Daley's side as the mayor read the resignation to reporters.

The mayor said O'Connor will "continue to serve the people of Chicago" in some other capacity.

The mayor, a Democrat, and the governor, a Republican both considered the most powerful men in Illinois in their respective parties, blasted each other in separate news conferences.

Stratton was first. Pounding a desk, he told reporters the police scandals had to be cleaned up and that he would use his powers as governor to do it.

Daley, red in the face, shouted: "Just let the governor try to come in here and try to run the city! I'll show him how to run the city. No man... can come in here and tell the people of Chicago how to run this city!"

A 23-year-old ex-convict, Richard Morrison, started the scandal when he disclosed that he had police help in looting stores in the Summerdale police district of north Chicago.

Morrison said eight policemen helped him loot stores and five others extracted bribes from him. The 13 officers have been charged with criminal offenses and suspended from the force.

Summerdale's Supervising Police Capt. Thomas McLaughlin recommended that seven other officers from the district be given lie detector tests in connection with the burglary of Murray Frank and Associates last November when $24,000 worth of liquor and women's hosiery was stolen.

The tough hawk-nosed paratrooper commander and offices were closing down and public bus drivers refused to leave garages. Gangs of young Europeans were reported roaming the streets urging storekeepers and others to join the strike.

Combat-armed French troops fanned throughout the city to put down an outbreak. Police carried tommy-guns and the army patrols wore steel helmets.

De Gaulle announced Friday that he would go to Algeria to take a first-hand look into the situation on Feb. 5.

PARIS (UPI) — Paratroop Maj.-Gen. Jacques Massu reported to President Charles de Gaulle today amid reports from Algiers of a wave of strikes in protest against Massu's dismissal from his Algerian posts.

Massu arrived at the Elysee Palace shortly before noon and was immediately ushered into de Gaulle's office.

HOPE GONE FOR 440

New Rockfall Blocks Rescuers

COALBROOK, South Africa (UPI) — A new rockfall forced mine rescue workers to run for their lives today and halted rescue operations for some 440 miners trapped deep underground in the Clydesdale Colliery.

"We're right back where we started," one rescuer said when he returned to the surface.

The new fall — third to hit the colliery since Thursday — all but ended hopes that any of the entombed miners would be found alive.

The miners — officially estimated today to total 434 Afriicans and six whites — had been buried 600 feet below the surface of the Clydesdale mine for about 48 hours when the new rock fall sealed them off more desperately than before.

Only one possibility of reaching the trapped men remained, mine officials said. This was an attempt — expected to begin later today —

Doctors said no complications were expected as the premier has a robust constitution.

PREMIER'S ILLNESS MAY DAMPEN LEGISLATURE AS ELECTION PROSPECTS MOUNT

Without the 'Big Voice' the Rough-and-Tumble Will Be Delayed

By PETE LOUDON

Times Legislative Reporter
Premier Bennett's illness may throw a damper over the session of the B.C. legislature which opens next Thursday.

Political observers have been expecting real "knock-about" debates during the session, which most believe will almost certainly be followed by a general election.

With the election in the offing, the whole eight-year record of Social Credit administration will be on the line as the House meets.

But indications are the premier, who normally dominates the House and is the main target of opposition attacks, will be missing for at least the first two weeks.

Back for Budget?

The all-important budget speech, which Mr. Bennett makes as finance minister, is scheduled for the second week of February. It is questionable whether Mr. Bennett will be fully recovered in time to deliver it.

Standing of the House as it begins its fourth session is: Social Credit 38, CCF 10, Liberals 3, Labor 1.

But at least three will be missing at the opening. In addition to Mr. Bennett, P. "Archibald" Gibbs, Oak Bay Liberal, and Thomas Bate, Point Grey Social Credit, are on the sick list.

The session will be notable in that Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross will don his plumed hat for the last time before retirement. His Speech from the Throne is expected to be one of the longest he has delivered.

The premier is aiming for a "happy" session with a maximum of budgetary handouts and a minimum of new legislation, hoping to keep argument to a dull roar.

There are hints of new largesse—using some $12,000,000 which last year he had to take out of current revenues to meet charges on his direct debt. The debt now is transferred to the "self-liquidating" columns of the books of the PGE, the B.C. Power Commission and the Highways and Bridges Toll Authority.

Dependent on his revenues, expected to be high in a record $300,000,000 budget, observers optimistically see increases in welfare benefits, civil service salaries; homeowner grants, highway construction and municipal aid for school projects.

With an election on the horizon, they see the government soft-pedalling the drive for curbs on labor unions which marked the 1959 session. But the CCF ranks, if they have no new controversies, do have a bank of old ones to draw on.

Gagliardi Target

Bitter debates will occur on the development of power and the Shrum Report which came too late for the session last year. They will fight again for repeal of Bill 43 (the Trade Unions Act), and it's almost certain they will press new attacks on Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi and recent allegations of patronage in the awarding of highway construction contracts.

CCF Leader Robert Strachan says this mainly will be a "power" session.

Opposition ranks will probably filibuster the Peace River power development plans, maintaining the consumer will be hurt unless the project is saved for public development instead of by Wenner-Gren interests.

They will pound out the refrain: "Public power must be cheaper—there are no private profits to pay, and no corporation taxes."

Liberals Attack

Mr. Strachan will speak with authority for labor in B.C. Although the impending partnership of the CCF and the CLC-BCFL is a new party, it is not yet complete, the recent brief to cabinet by the B.C. Federation of Labor was so consistent with CCF policies it appeared as a vote of confidence.

The three-man Liberal section will attack the Bennett bookkeeping system as misleading and wasteful. They will call again for a complete review and revision of the present system of forest management—charging that only the five or six largest firms can now compete for development rights.

They will likely join with the CCF and lone independent and patriarch of the House, Tom Uphill, in again demand the publication of the Carothers' Report on civil service bargaining.

The premier is not expected to budge on this, but as a salve to the government workers, likely will announce another small boost in their salary scale.

But perhaps more important, in view of the federal government's reluctance to meet employee wage requests, a wage boost in B.C. would place the federal Conservative government, (which Mr. Bennett continually attacks) in a poor light—and react to the premier's benefit on polling day.

Of paramount importance at the municipal level is the need for more and more schools and the difficulty school boards are having in selling their construction bonds. The premier said last week the government has purchased $10,000,000 of the last $12,000,000 of school bonds issued,

Education Aid

Education Minister Peterson

said in North Vancouver the government is preparing additional assistance. A letter from financial adviser Dr. J. V. Fisher has indicated the same.

It is expected the government will take some action in this session to raise money by sale of debentures and make it available to the school boards. Otherwise shift systems may be again in vogue in September—which would hurt if an election was held

that month. June or September are most common guesses.

On the health scene, Health

Minister Eric Martin has already announced the government chronic hospital plan likely will be in operation this spring.

The scheme would extend

BCHIS coverage to "chronic" patients if the municipalities provide hospital facilities.

The definition of chronic will be those patients who can fully rehabilitated.

The premier has made public speeches promising the start this year of a $10,000,

000 highway program expecting through the next decade. This is expected to be most obvious in heavily populated areas. There will be new wide open.

Accordingly, discussion on either of these subjects likely will be curtailed . . . but almost everything else will be wide open.

Soft Pedalled

Two important investigations are underway on behalf of the provincial government

—the Chant royal commission on education and the American Psychiatric Association probe of mental health services. But officials doubt either one of these will be complete and reports made before the summer months.

Accordingly, discussion on either of these subjects likely will be curtailed . . . but almost everything else will be wide open.

Boys Try Escape Up Ventilator From City Jail

Two juvenile escapees from a mainland institution tried unsuccessfully to make their second break overnight Friday from city jail, where they were being held for the RCMP.

City police caught the boys after they tore part of an unused ventilator shaft from a wall of the jail's lower tier.

"It's been tried before," Chief John Blackstock said. "But they couldn't get out that way anyhow; it's too small."

He said the ventilator runs to the roof of the building and has not been used for years.

The prisoners ripped a grille off the wall, breaking parts of the wall away but not seriously damaging the building.

The opening is too small for a person to squeeze through and climb, the chief said. Furthermore there is a solid wall behind the shaft.

The RCMP said the boys, about 17 years of age, had escaped from custody on the mainland but did specify from which institution. They were arrested here Friday and lodged in the jail overnight as is customary with prisoners who must be escorted across the gulf.

Police took them back to Vancouver this morning.

The last escape from Victoria city jail was more than 10 years ago and the escapee was caught shortly afterward.

ARMY 'BOOM' TO SALUTE ROYAL BIRTH

The birth of Queen Elizabeth's third child in the next few weeks will be heralded by 21-gun salutes fired by army gunners.

In Victoria, the salute will be fired at the causeway by four gun crews of 5th B.C. Independent Medium Battery, R.C.A.

The salute will be fired at all provincial capitals, at Ottawa, and at Vancouver and Montreal.

Army headquarters said the salutes will be fired at noon on the day of the birth if information is received in time.

If not, they will be fired before sunset on the day of the birth or at noon the following day.

If the birth occurs on a Sunday, the army salutes will be fired at noon on Monday.

The RCN Pacific Command had previously announced plans to parade a guard of honor and fire a Royal salute to mark the birth.

The RCN Pacific Command had previously announced plans to parade a guard of honor and fire a Royal salute to mark the birth.

The birth of Queen Elizabeth's third child in the next few weeks will be heralded by 21-gun salutes fired by army gunners.

The salute will be fired at all provincial capitals, at Ottawa, and at Vancouver and Montreal.

Army headquarters said the salutes will be fired at noon on the day of the birth if information is received in time.

If not, they will be fired before sunset on the day of the birth or at noon the following day.

If the birth occurs on a Sunday, the army salutes will be fired at noon on Monday.

19 Arrested in Gambling Squad Raid

VANCOUVER (CP) — Nineteen men were arrested early today in a police gambling squad raid in Vancouver's Chinatown district.

Wong Wo, 59, was charged with keeping a gaming house and later released on $200 bail. The other 18 were charged as inmates and released on $15 bail.

Police said they seized $119, two packages of playing cards, mah-jong tiles and furniture.

Chessman Begins Another Appeal

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Convict-author Caryl Chessman, who has lived in San Quentin's death row for 11½ years, today started a new court appeal effort to escape gas-chamber execution Feb. 19.

Fire Destroys Rochester Synagogue

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — A synagogue was destroyed in a three-alarm fire here early today.

The fire in Temple Beth-El, a two-storey stone structure, apparently started in a kitchen, firemen said. Cause of the blaze was not immediately determined.

KIDNEY AILMENT

Premier 'Fine' After Surgery

Kidney Stone Removed; Major Surgery Success

Premier Bennett was reported in "good spirits" today following the emergency operation he underwent at St. Joseph's Hospital Friday for removal of a kidney stone.

The operation, lasting almost two hours, was reported satisfactory.

"The premier had a good night apart from a little post-operative distress," a hospital official said. "He had a light breakfast and is resting quietly and cheerfully."

Mrs. Bennett, who has visited him regularly since he was admitted to hospital, told friends the premier was "in good spirits" today.

She was to visit him again this afternoon.

THREE WEEKS

Only members of the family will be allowed to see him today and Sunday, but it is expected members of the cabinet will be admitted Monday.

The 59-year-old premier is likely to be in hospital three weeks and will therefore miss the first two weeks of the legislative session to be opened next Thursday by Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross.

Health Minister Eric Martin as deputy premier will take his place in the colorful opening ceremonies.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner will be House leader.

A government spokesman said it is hoped the premier will be back in the House if time to deliver his budget as finance minister on Feb. 12.

But doctors say he may not be ready to return by that date, in which case the presentation of the budget will probably be postponed.

The operation was performed Friday afternoon by two unnamed surgeons.

Said Dr. E. N. Boettcher, medical superintendent of St. Joseph's Hospital:

"I have been asked not to disclose their names."

Dr. Boettcher added that an operation for removal of a kidney stone is a major operation, "but under present-day techniques it is not critical."

NO COMPLICATIONS

The operation was begun at 3 p.m. and was expected to last two hours. But it was over by 4:45 p.m., some 15 minutes earlier than expected.

Doctors said no complications were expected as the premier has a robust constitution. He has been absent from work for health reasons on only two occasions — once when he had 'flu and the other when he sprained a tendon in his heel.

A special telephone was set up in the hospital today to handle numerous inquiries after the premier's condition — and some were long-distance calls from his home constituency of Kelowna.

HULL REGAINS LEAD

Chi-Hawks Edge Punchless N.Y.

Hull's goal, with assists from Hay and Murray Balfour, gave the line 20 goals and 25 assists for 45 points in the 14 games they have played together. Hull increased his total to 58 points, one more than Bronco Horvath of Boston.

The victory widened the Chicago margin over the fifth-place Boston Bruins to a game and a half.

It was Hawks' third straight win for a record of five wins in their last six games, and the Rangers' fifth straight loss.

Both teams packed all the scoring and most of the penalties into the first period. Seven penalties were called in the first period and only three for the remaining 40 minutes.

Chicago came from behind to win. Dean Prentiss notched his 19th goal of the season for New York in the opening five minutes, but eight minutes later, Hull tied the game when he took a pass from Bill Hay and drove a four-footer past goalie Lorne Worsley.

Ron Murphy accounted for the winning score with an eight-foot shot into the Ranger net with 49 seconds left in the period.

WASHINGTON (AP) — An airliner plunged into the Gulf of Mexico Nov. 16. Another crashed in North Carolina on Jan. 6. Together they make one of the most intricate mysteries investigators have ever been asked to solve.

More pieces of this human jigsaw puzzle keep coming in all the time, but where the pieces fit and the kind of picture they make is still as baffling as ever. Here are some of the questions that haven't been answered:

1. Were the two crashes in which a total of 76 persons died caused by bombs? The first plane is at the bottom of the Gulf of Mexico. Of the second, the latest word is that if an explosive made it disintegrate in air, it was an uncommon kind—not like dynamite or nitroglycerine which leave tell-tale traces.

4. Can the North Carolina crash be traced to a suicide bomb? Julian A. Frank, 32, a heavily insured Westport, Conn., lawyer, has been an ob-

SECOND FIDDLE FOR FIRST LORD

Navy Pipes a Bit Pipped

LONDON (Reuters) — Red-faced navy officials today did their best to explain away a comedy of errors featuring the new First Lord of the Admiralty, Lord Carrington.

It was no use.

The whole performance at the great naval base at Portsmouth Friday was seen by thousands on television.

Lord Carrington was in Portsmouth to pay his first official visit since assuming his new post. He and his private secretary, Lt.-Col. Nairne, dressed alike in traditional blue serge suits and peaked caps, were about to step aboard the minesweeper Sherman for a routine call—when the trouble began.

Chicago Force Under New Cloud

(Times News Services)

CHICAGO — Police Commissioner Timothy J. O'Connor resigned today amid a ballooning scandal of widespread police thievery that rocked his 10,000-man force.

His resignation was announced 30 minutes after Gov. William G. Stratton at an extraordinary press conference threatened to invoke his legislative and administrative powers if Mayor Richard J. Daley didn't clean up the scandal and "clean it up quick."

O'Connor said he was quitting as commissioner because of illness. The commissioner, 31 years a policeman, sat by Daley's side as the mayor read the resignation to reporters.

The mayor said O'Connor will "continue to serve the people of Chicago" in some other capacity.

The mayor, a Democrat, and the governor, a Republican both considered the most powerful men in Illinois in their respective parties, blasted each other in separate news conferences.

Stratton's was first. Pounding a desk, he told reporters the police scandals had to be cleaned up and that he would use his powers as governor to do it.

Daley, red in the face, shouted: "Just let the governor try to come in here and try to run the city! I'll show him how to run the city. No man . . . can come in here and tell the people of Chicago how to run this city!"

A 23-year-old ex-convict, Richard Morrison, started the scandal when he disclosed that he had police help in looting stores in the Summerdale police district of north Chicago.

Morrison said eight police officers helped him loot stores and five others extracted bribes from him. The 13 officers have been charged with criminal offences and suspended from the force.

Summerdale's Supervising Police Capt. Thomas McLaughlin recommended that seven other officers from the district be given lie detector tests in connection with the burglary of Murray Frank and Associates last November when $24,000 worth of liquor and women's hosiery was stolen.

In a letter to O'Connor earlier this week, Frank said he was told by FBI agents that the burglary was a professional job and required police protection to be successful.

In Algiers, stores and offices were closing down and public bus drivers refused to leave garages. Gangs of young Europeans were reported roaming the streets urging storekeepers and others to join the strike.

Combat-armed French troops fanned throughout the city to put down an outbreak. Police carried tommy-guns and the army patrols wore steel helmets.

De Gaulle announced Friday that he would go to Algeria to take a first-hand look into the situation on Feb. 5.

"That would be jolly-nice," Nairne replied.

"Good idea," said Carrington, although no one paid any attention to him.

The trip around the ship took 30 minutes. King saluted Nairne and said, "It's been an honor having you." Nairne — still trailed silently by Carrington — was piped ashore.

An embarrassed King later said: "Now I realize I never even met the first lord. I left him standing on the deck."

Nairne said: "I never thought I was being mistaken for the first lord."

Carrington was not heard from. Officials in London said he had left for the country.
